"TOKYO ROSE" FOUND GUILTY

Jury Convicts Mrs. D'Aquino On One Charge

Radio Tokyo Figure During War Will Be Sentenced On Oct. 6

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29 (AP)—Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino, Los Angeles-born broadcaster on Radio Tokyo during the war, was convicted tonight of one of eight charges of treason. She will be sentenced October 6.

An audible "oh" of apparent disappointment swept Judge Michael J. Roche's federal courtroom when the verdict was announced after four days of deliberation. Most of the spectators had expected an acquittal.

Iva, dubbed "Tokyo Rose" by American GIs who heard her programs on the "Zero Hour," sat with head bowed when the verdict was read. As stoical as she had been during the 12-week trial, she maintained her composure, although earlier in the day she had appeared near collapse.

Spoke Of Ship Losses

The count upon which she was convicted was that of making a broadcast concerning the loss of American ships. That paragraph in the eight-count indictment reads:

"6. That on a day during October, 1944, the exact date being to the grand jurors unknown, said defendant, at Tokyo, Japan, in a broadcasting studio of the Broadcasting Corporation of Japan, did speak into a micrphone concerning the loss of ships."

The six men and six women of the jury declined to reveal how the polling went during their deliberations.

Newsmen told Jury Foreman John Mann that the press table had voted 9 to 1 for acquittal, and he said:

"Well, you're not so far off from us." He declined to explain.

Although dog-tired, the jurors twice rejected the judge's offers of a recess in order to drive toward a verdict.

The minimum sentence Iva could receive is a five-year prison term plus a $10,000 fine. The maximum sentence is death.

Defense Will Appeal

Defense Attorney Wayne Collins said he would appeal.

Tom De Wolfe, chief prosecutor, termed the verdict "a just one for the United States."

"It was arrived at by an intelligent jury after apparently long, serious and persevering deliberations."

Judge Roche also complimented

Huge Economic Aid Measure Is Sent To Truman

Senate, House Pass 5.8 Billion Measure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Senate tonight passed a $5,809,890,000 bill for foreign economic aid, already approved by the House, and sent it to the White House.

Senate approval of the huge aid measure was by voice vote.

The House had passed the bill earlier in the day against little more than token opposition.

Passage of the economic aid measure came within 24 hours after both chambers had approved a $1,314,010,000 military aid bill to help friendly nations rearm.

Cold War "Weapon"

Taken together, the $7,124,000,000 measures are designed to strengthen the non-Communist world in the cold war against Red aggression.

The House shouted the multi-billion-dollar aid bill to passage in a chorus of "ayes," with a few dissents heard, and then sped it to a waiting Senate for final action there.

As passed by the House, the bill represents a compromise on separate measures already approved by each chamber. It gives Marshall Plan Administrator Paul G. Hoffman about 10 per cent less than he originally requested for European recovery program spending.

Where Money Will Go

Here is the breakdown on where the money will go:

Economic recovery in non-Communist Europe—$3,778,380,000 for 12 months. The House originally voted $3,568,470,000 for 10½ months, the Senate $3,628,380,000 for 12 months.

Marshall Plan expenditures during the last three months of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1949—$1,074,000,000.

Greece and Turkey—$45,000,000.

United States military government and relief in Germany, Austria, Japan and the Ryukyu Islands—$912,500,000.

75 Perish In Floods

MADRID, Sept. 29 (AP) —Seventy-five persons have lost their lives in a three-day electric and rain storm which has flooded vast areas of Spain.

In addition to the death toll, nearly 100 persons were reported missing.

Commons Vote Of Confidence Is Given Attlee

Labor Government's Devaluation Action Approved 342 To 5

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP)—The House of Commons gave Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government an overwhelming vote of confidence tonight in a showdown on devaluation that might have forced Britain into a new national election immediately.

The government's action cutting the value of the pound sterling from $4.03 to $2.80 as a means of bettering Britain's economic position was approved 342 to five, with members of the Conservative opposition abstaining.

A motion of no confidence proposed by Winston Churchill, stocky leader of the Conservatives, was defeated a few minutes earlier by a vote of 350 to 212.

Three Days Of Debate

The 212 votes in opposition equals the highest vote ever cast against the Labor government since it took office in 1945. The government bill for nationalization of the steel industry encountered the opposition of 212 members November 17, 1948, but passed.

If the government had failed to win on the motion of confidence, it would have been forced to resign. This would have necessitated a new parliamentary election at once. Now the government is again empowered to decide when the election will be held. Its term of office normally expires next July.

The votes wound up three days of debate. The largely Conservative House of Lords, which exercises little influence, voted 93 to 24 against the government's economic policy last night.

Three-Line Whip

The Conservatives of Commons, in declining to vote on the government motion, explained they felt they had made their opposition clear in the support of their own no-confidence motion.

The five votes against the government motion were from either Communists or independent Laborites ousted from the Labor Party for traveling too close to the Communist line. The Labor Party had out a three-line whip, requiring obedience in voting on pain of discipline, to labor MP's. Laborites hold 393 of the 640 seats in Commons.

Churchill called yesterday for ouster of the Attlee regime and a general election.

Senate Approves Cabinet Pay Hike

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Senate tonight passed 52 to 14 a bill to boost the pay of Cabinet members and other top level government officials.

It goes to the House which has approved a bill calling for generally larger salary increases for some 240 key executives.

Mr. Truman had urged Senate approval of the House bill.

The Senate bill, calling for increases totalling about $700,000, would raise the pay of Cabinet officers to $22,500. They now get $15,000. The House voted $25,000.

The heads of federal agencies and undersecretaries of departments would get increases bringing their salaries to $15,000, or $5,000 less than the House approved.

By a narrow 39 to 28 margin, a Senate group lost a fight to amend the bill by requiring President Truman to slash federal spending five to 10 per cent.

Tear Gas Bombs End Bell Strike Violence

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP) — Tear gas bombs today ended the more violent of two wild melees that broke out in the turbulent Bell aircraft strike as non-strikers sought to pass an all-women picket line.

Twenty-five deputies and an undetermined number of non-strikers and members of the striking CIO United Auto Workers union were hurt in the two-short lived outbreaks.

The tear gas bombs were hurled by deputy sheriffs from the ground and from a low-flying helicopter.

Armed Men Guard Non-Union Coal Mine

Three men, armed with rifles, guard the non-union coal mine operated by the six Preskitt brothers near Birmingham, Ala. One man was wounded seriously Wednesday in a pitched battle at the mine, which continued in operation despite a union walkout. S. O. Preskitt, upper center, and O. E. Preskitt, right, are two of the owners.

Truman Predicts Demo Victories In 1950 And '52

Sees "Fair Deal" Program Enacted

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 29 (AP) — President Truman declared here tonight that the Democratic Party will "win in 1950" and again "in 1952" by campaigning on his "Fair Deal" program.

In a fighting party speech at a testimonial dinner for Democratic National Chairman William M. (Bill) Boyle, Jr., the President also:

1. Predicted enactment of his program if it "takes all summer, all next winter and all next summer."

2. Declared that this nation can establish an income upwards of 300 billion dollars annually and an income of $4,000 per family for one-fourth the population who, he said, now have less than a $2,000 income per year.

Hints At Barkley Wedding

3. Hinted at the approaching marriage of Vice-President Barkley, another speaker, with these words:

"I am glad to get the distinguished Vice-President to visit some place in Missouri outside of St. Louis.

"He is a grand man. I am exceedingly glad that he is about to become a citizen of Missouri."

Barkley's frequent dates with Mrs. Carleton Hadley, St. Louis widow, had stirred repeated reports that a wedding might be in the offing.

Nearly 9,000 persons packed into Kansas City's spacious municipal auditorium to hear the President's speech which appeared to keynote the Democratic congressional campaign of 1950.

Of this number nearly 3,000 paid $15 a plate for a steak dinner.

"Special Interests" Assailed

Mr. Truman assailed the so-called "special interests," his favorite target in many a campaign talk.

And he spoke caustically of newspaper men who opposed his election last November.

He said "a free press" is needed more than anything else in this country.

He referred to "broken-down reporters turned columnists" and to "pollsters" who "couldn't fool the people."

Dynamite Blasts, Rifle Fire Rock Nation's Coal Fields

UMW 'Sabotage' Charged; Break Hinted

[By The Associated Press]

Dynamite blasts and rifle fire rocked the nation's coal fields yesterday and a mine official said it was "out and out sabotage" on the part of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

Nearly 10,000 non-union miners were on the job throughout the country in defiance of UMW pickets. Lewis' union quit work 11 days ago in a walkout that has idled 480,000 coal miners.

Meanwhile, hints of a major break in the work stoppage came from widely scattered points on the black map of coal.

From Hazleton, Pa., came a report by the Anthracite Tri-District News, UMW publication, that an end of the sympathy walkout of 80,000 hard coal miners is in sight.

Operator Offer Rejected

But at a White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., conference between the union and northern and western operators, the UMW turned down for a fourth time an offer by the operators to extend the main provisions of the old wage contract until March 31, 1951.

"Every time they (operators) want to issue a statement or go to the country they make that offer," said UMW Vice President John M. Kennedy. "They know it is not acceptable and does not meet the realities of the situation."

George M. Love, president of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company and chief spokesman of the operators, forecast a coal shortage within two or three weeks if the shutdown continues.

Hidden riflemen let loose with a fusillade of shots at a 15-truck coal convoy descending Snow Shoe Mountain in Central Pennsylvania. The truckers were carrying non-union coal from the mines to tipples where the coal was to be cleaned, crushed and loaded on railroad cars.

No One Injured

No one was hurt, but state police officials said at least 14 shots were fired at the convoy heavily guarded by state police.

"We didn't know we were being fired upon at first," said State Police Corporal Robert Daily. "But after the first few shots we realized what it was and stopped the caravan."

The big police detail took to the woods to chase the gunmen, but found no one.

The dynamite-blasted mine tipples are located at Grass Flats in Clearfield County, Pa., and near Morgantown, Ky.

Message Hoax; Search For Two Fliers Called Off

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP) — A renewed plane and ship search for two missing Italian trans-Atlantic fliers was called off late today after the mysterious message which inspired it was exposed as a hoax.

The mysterious message had given hope that the two airmen —John M. Brondello and Camillio Barioglio — might be drifting in the Atlantic 300 miles east of the Bahamas. They had been missing 12 days.

However, reports from Rome late in the day indicated that the whole thing was based on a fake message received by telepathic currents," not by radio.

At the same time, the coast guard announced here that the Italian Embassy in Washington, after a series of urgent inquiries in Rome, had reported "all authorities regard case as hoax."

Gives Away $15,000, Lands In Hospital

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—A former Michigan machinist who gave away $15,000 of his $21,000 fortune in five days was placed in a hospital for mental observation tonight.

Chief beneficiaries of the sudden windfall from Cornelius Laroy were three cab drivers, some waitresses, a few pedestrians and a race track, police said.

Laroy appeared voluntarily at police headquarters to tell his story after police got reports that $100 bills were being changed by persons who wouldn't ordinarily have them.

He told officers that he came here to get a passport to South Africa, which he claimed was his birthplace.

Moscow Scraps Mutual Aid Pact With Yugoslavia

Says Tito In League With "Imperialists"

MOSCOW, Sept. 29 (AP) — Soviet Russia has broken off her war-born mutual aid treaty with Yugoslavia on grounds that Premier Marshal Tito's government is linked with foreign imperialists in "hostile and disruptive work against the U.S.S.R." The treaty normally would have run until 1965.

The government announced the break tonight.

Based On Budapest Trial

Its accusation was based on the recent Budapest treason trial, in which former Hungarian Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk and two other high Communists were sentenced to death. They were charged with plotting with Americans and Yugoslav's to overthrow Hungary's Communist government and swing the nation into Tito's orbit.

(In Belgrade, there was no immediate official reaction. London political observers speculated that the Soviet action would be followed by scrapping of similar treaties with Yugoslavia by Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and Romania. These nations are joined with Russia in the Cominform, from which Yugoslavia was expelled in June, 1948.)

Pact Signed In 1945

The Soviet decision was contained in a note handed by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko yesterday to Yugoslavia's temporary charge d'affaires, Lazo Latinovic.

Denunciation of the treaty snipped one of the few remaining threads that had bound Russia and Yugoslavia, which emerged from the war under Communist rule.

The Soviet-Yugoslav treaty, signed April 11, 1945, by Marshal Tito and V. M. Molotov, then Soviet foreign minister, provided that neither would take a hostile step against the other.

McAuliffe Confirmed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP) — Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, who replied "nuts" to a German surrender demand during World War II, was confirmed by the Senate tonight as the new chief of the Army's Chemical Corps.

Pre-Deadline Strike Closes Crucible Plant

Mediators Will Make Final Try At Averting Nationwide Walkout

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 29 (AP) —The red glow slowly faded out of the skies above the nation's steel cities tonight as the mills put the damper on their furnaces for a strike at 12:01 a. m. Saturday.

One small steel company agreed to CIO United Steelworkers' pension-insurance demands but the industry's giants wouldn't budge at all.

Hope for an eleventh hour settlement faded fast. Said Steelworker President Philip Murray:

"I wouldn't even comment about hope at this time."

Some of his steelworkers already are leaving their jobs.

Shutdown orders went into effect across the country.

Picket Lines Form

Picket lines formed outside Crucible Steel's Midland plant near Pittsburgh, idling 7,000 and halting operations 36 hours before expiration of the presidential strike truce.

Crucible called it "a full-fledged strike."

Portsmouth, (O.) Steel Corporation signed a contract to break the steel industry's solid front against free insurance and pensions for workers.

It agreed to foot the pension and insurance bill for its 4,000 employes. Previously all steel companies insisted if their workers wanted a social security program they would have to help pay for it.

In two important instances—Bethlehem and Republic—negotiations collapsed completely.

Twice during the day Murray got together behind closed hotel doors with the mammoth United States Steel Corporation but they seemingly got nowhere.

What they do is expected to chart industry's course. But both day and night conferences broke up without comment.

Both sides did accept an invitation to meet at 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow with federal mediators.

Promise Not Fulfilled

William N. Margolis, assistant director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and Peter Setz, its general counsel, sent telegrams into the conference room asking management and union to meet with them.

The day started with considerable promise.

The Ford Motor Company announced it had reached an agreement on pensions and insurance—the main disagreement in the steel industry, too—with the CIO Auto Workers.

This agreement, it was thought, would put pressure on the steel negotiations. Ford had agreed to pay a pension-and-insurance pro-

New Ford Pact May Set Pattern

DETROIT, Sept. 29 (AP)—A unique new contract permitting Ford employes to retire on $100 a month set a goal today for millions of other workers.

The unprecedented 30-month agreement was reached this morning by Ford Motor Company and the CIO United Auto Workers. It ended a 118-day bargaining battle and, at the last minute, headed off a strike of 115,000 Ford workers.

Under the terms, employes with 30 years service can retire at 65 with full pensions. Ford will pay the entire cost, adding enough to federal social security benefits to bring the total to $100.

The new Ford contract calls for no wage increase. It follows broadly the recommendations of President Truman's fact-finding committee in the steel dispute.

East-West Atomic Talks Will Continue

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 29 (AP)—Russia and five western powers agreed today to continue talks in secrecy on any possibilities of breaking the East-West deadlock over atomic energy control.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, France, China and Canada met in closed session with Russian delegates to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission for more than two hours.

It was the first such meeting of the six countries since President Truman's announcement last week of evidence an atomic explosion had occurred in the Soviet Union.

There were rumors as the meeting began that a compromise was under discussion to end the long deadlock.

Pope Condemns Artificial Insemination As Immoral

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Sept. 29 (AP) — Pope Pius XII announced tonight that artificial insemination is immoral and against nature in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Pope said any child born of this means will be considered by the church to be illegitimate if the donor of the semen is not the husband of the child's mother.

The Pontiff addressed delegates of 30 nations who attended the fourth International Congress of Catholic Doctors. He received them in the Swiss Guard Hall of his summer palace here.

Pope Pius said artificial insemination should be "condemned without appeal."

"Only spouses have the right to unite their flesh to generate a new life," he said. "If the active element (the sperm) has to be taken from a man to fecundate a woman, this constitutes a sin against nature."

The Pope said there are cases in which artificial insemination is admissible — such as when a doctor's help is needed to "fulfill the work of nature." This means that a doctor may be needed in cases where the sperm cannot by natural means reach the cervical canal of the womb. The church would consider this a fulfillment of "the work of nature."

Death Mars Mock Marine Landing On Boston Beach

BOSTON, Sept. 29 (INS)—A veteran newspaper photographer was killed today and three naval officers were injured, one critically, when a flare shell in a mortar exploded prematurely during a mock marine landing at Carson Beach.

Morris "Moe" Fineberg, 56, of the Boston Post, a World War I veteran, died on the sand when struck by a fragment of the mortar, which burst apart and raked the beach with metal.

The three wounded navy officers, taken to Carney Hospital, were Lt. Hugh E. McStay, 38, Norfolk, Va., who was operating the mortar; Ensign William Langone, III, son of former State Sen. Langone, and Lt. Comdr. E. G. Meade, Philadelphia. The latter two men were public relations officers.

A spectator among the 250,000 watching the amphibious assault was struck in the stomach by a rock hurled by an underwater demolition explosion. Mrs. Gwendolyn Toler, 43, South Boston, was treated at city hospital and released.

The simulated invasion of Carson Beach in which 3,000 Marine and naval personnel participated was staged as a feature of the Marine Corps League national convention being held in Boston

U.N. Votes To Air Chinese Charges

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 29 (AP) — The United Nations Assembly voted overwhelmingly today to air Nationalist China's detailed charges that Russia backs Chinese Communists and thereby endangers peace.

The vote was 45 to 6 to let China present evidence. Yugoslavia voted with Russia in the minority.

The deputy Yugoslav foreign minister, Ales Bebler, said he foresaw the possibility of a world war if the United Nations insisted on probing into what he called China's internal affairs. Bebler contended the United Nations would find itself taking sides against the Soviet Union and against a popular liberation movement inside China.

Poland, Czechoslovakia, the Ukraine and White Russia also voted against the Chinese proposal.

Committee Urges House Action On Social Security

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee today urged quick action on a multi-billion dollar expansion of the social security program to relieve growing pressure for pension plans.

The committee sought to speed the much-debated issue to an early House vote — possibly next week. Chances of Senate action before next year, however, appeared slim.

Bill Increases Coverage

The new social security bill — a key item in President Truman's "Fair Deal" program — would add approximately 11,000,000 workers to the 35,000,000 persons now covered It also would boost benefits an averby old age and survivors insurance. age of about 70 per cent and increase the payroll levies which are paid in equal shares by the worker and employer.

In calling for prompt action on the measure, the committee said there are dangers in the "increasing pressures for special pensions for particular groups and particular hazards" in the absence of an "adequate" federal plan.

The committee urged in its formal report that the basic federal system be strengthened, and then any special needs of particular groups which remained be worked out in an orderly way.

Approved By Committee

"Without an adequate and universally applicable basic social insurance system," the committee said, "the demands for security by segments of the population threaten to result in unbalanced, overlapping and competing programs. The financing of such plans may become chaotic, their economic effects dangerous."

The Ways and Means committee approved the administration bill 22 to 3 on August 5 after months of hearings. Since then the proposal has been held up by the House Rules Committee.

Production Increases

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP) — Industrial production increased five per cent in August, snapping a decline of eight consecutive months.

Miss Europe Likes Skimpy Swim Suits, Frowns On Falsies

ROME, Sept. 29 (AP)—Miss Europe of 1949, Juliette Figueras of Arles, France, implied today that American women don't know how lucky they are.

The 20-year-old brunette beauty had this to say about American men: "They're so strong and handsome. Nearly all of them seem to look like Cary Grant, my favorite movie actor."

At a news conference, Miss Figueras also gave her opinion on falsies and the next-to-nothing Bikini bathing suits. She regards the former as unfair to men and said: "Personally I don't need them."

She said she liked the skimpy bathing suits, explaining: "If a girl is beautiful, she has nothing to hide, and besides, they're more agreeable to swim in."

Berlin Airlift Grinds To Final Stop Today

BERLIN, Sept. 29 (AP) —The Berlin airlift, supply line that cracked the Russian blockade, will grind to a final stop tomorrow after 15 months of spectacular operation.

The United States Air Force announced today the lift would be "phased out" a month ahead of the original target date because Western Berlin now is fully stocked with supplies for the winter.

The last four-engined cargo ship will leave Frankfurt's Rheinmain airfield for Berlin at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow (11:30 a. m. EST) and sit down with 10 tons of supplies at Tempelhof probably an hour and one half later.

the jury for its patient, hard work. Iva's father, Jun, and her sister, Mrs. June Hori, were in court.

The trial cost the government well over a half million dollars.

While the defense argued that Iva's Tokyo Rose broadcasts were harmless entertainment — that she even managed to slip in an occasional piece of information valuable to the Allies—the prosecution termed her an "arch traitoress" and a "female Benedict Arnold."

Nephew Of King Marries Pianist

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP) — The Earl of Harewood, music - loving nephew of the King, married Miss Marion Stein, Vienna-born pianist, while the royal family watched and thousands of commoners strained against police lines in the streets today.

They took the Anglican marriage vows in the 124-year old Church of St. Mark's. The bridegroom and his new countess took off tonight for a three-week honeymoon in Paris, Rome and Capri.

The 26-year-old earl, born George Henry Hubert Lascelles, is 11th in line for Britain's throne. His bride, 22, has lived in England only a dozen years. Their marriage was the first in the British royal family since Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Philip, were wed two years ago.

Assembly Republicans To Draw Up Program

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 29 (AP) — The 47 Republican members of the General Assembly will caucus in Annapolis October 22 to draw up a program for the 1950 legislative session, Sen. Hoff (R-Carroll) announced tonight.

Hoff is chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

When asked if the 11 Republican senators and 36 delegates will also lay plans for next year's state election, he replied "could be."

All come up for reelection next fall.

He said that Sen. Monroe (R-Charles) will be chairman of the joint caucus and Delegate Leona Rush (R-Montgomery) will act as secretary.

Hoff said the minority members "may have some political recommendations to make to the state central committee."

gram that would cost the company 10 cents an hour for each worker.

But if the decision by Ford had any effect on the steel talks, nobody said so. The major companies and the union seemed as far apart as ever on this question:

Should the worker help pay for his pension and insurance program?

Lane Opposes Too Much Federal Aid For Schools

TOWSON, Md., Sept. 29 (AP)—Gov. Lane said tonight he opposed too much federal aid for public schools.

"I believe in state's rights" for education, Lane said in a speech prepared for delivery at the dedication of a $2,500,000 Towson high school.

Public schools should be controlled by state and county governments, he said.

"For how long, I ask you, would our schools be subject to local control and local control alone, if the federal government should undertake to subsidize the public school system in this state, even in a limited degree?" he said.

It is up to the states to pay for education, he said, adding:

"The people demand the best obtainable education for their children, and if the state is not prepared, or unwilling to furnish education to these standards, then I confidently predict the people will turn to the federal government to furnish the wherewithal."

He said Maryland today is spending more than half its total general treasury revenues on public education.

The state and counties will have spent $101,000,000 on school construction in the period from January, 1947, when Lane took office to July 1950, he said.

A total of 121 new school buildings and 140 additions to existing schools will have been built or under construction in the same period, he added.

Strippers Within Inch Of Conviction

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 29 (AP)—Two strip tease dancers came within an inch of conviction in Court of Crimes today.

Deputy Sheriff George Patton charged that Penny Art and Jackie Paul "did unlawfully expose and exhibit their breasts in a vulgar and indecent manner" in a night club.

Judge Wayne Allen listened to testimony concerning scanty upper garments worn by the girls and then ruled no vulgarity was proved.

"If you had gone an inch further, you would have been in trouble," the judge said.

Chinese Detain Three U. S. Ships

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP)—Blockading Chinese Nationalist warships nabbed three American merchant vessels today, confronting the United States with a new issue in relations with China.

The ships were "detained" off the Yangtze River entrance below Communist-held Shanghai and notified that Nationalist naval officers were coming aboard for an inspection.

The State Department received this much information from the American Consulate General at Shanghai and announced immediately it was asking a full report before deciding what to do.

The incident promised a direct test of the disputed right of the Nationalists to close Shanghai and other Communist-held ports to foreign shipping. The closing order went into effect June 25. The United States does not recognize the blockade as legal.

The halted ships are the Flying Trader, bound into Shanghai from Hong Kong, and the Flying Independent and the Flying Clipper, both outbound from Shanghai.

Doctor Revives Man "Dead" For 20 Minutes

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 29 (AP) — A Charleston surgeon revived a patient 20 minutes after his heart stopped beating during an operation at a local hospital today.

Dr. John C. Condry said he brought Hillard Horn, 48-year-old negro of Omar, Logal County back to life by massaging the heart by hand.

The 36-year-old surgeon said the heart action and respiration stopped in the closing stages of an operation for gastric ulcers and that the man apparently was dead.

Baltimore Cathedral Plans Being Drawn

BALTIMORE, Sept. 29 (AP) — The Most Rev. Francis P. Keough, Catholic Archbishop of Baltimore, announced today that plans for a new Baltimore cathedral are being drawn up.

The cathedral will be built on a North Charles Street site acquired by the archdiocese many years ago for the purpose.

B-36 Bombers Sent To Alaska

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP) — The United States has dispatched several of its far-ranging B-36 atom bombers to Alaska, the Air Force disclosed today. It said the mission was for "routine training."

Just how long the giant planes would remain at America's Arctic outpost — only a short hop from Russia — the Air Force did not say.

It reported that about four B-36s sped north from their Fort Worth, Texas, base last week — about the time President Truman broke the news of Russia's atomic advances.

A high officer said this was only "coincidence."

The development, however, underscored efforts here in the capital to increase this country's atom bomb stockpiles.

Top atomic experts again met behind closed doors on Capitol Hill to map ways to speed production. But members of the Senate-House Atomic Committee and the Atomic Energy Commission refused to divulge what progress had been made.

The Japanese earthquake of Sept. 1, 1923, cost 99,331 lives.

BLACK IS BACK AND MAKING ITS BID FOR THE FIRST SPOT IN THE PERFECT WARDROBE COLOR CHART

By PAT FULLERTON
News Staff Writer

Black is back and making a real bid to recover its place in the affections of the really well dressed woman.

Time was when the simple, black dress was a must. Possibly rebellion at looking like everybody else in the room caused a revolution, but the "little black" went out for awhile.

The all-the-same curse has been taken away from the basic color and black for best is being pushed again.

For instance, a very simple dress has the plainness taken away by a velvet collar and tiny, velvet rope belt.

Crinkled nylon with partially slit neckline makes its bid for notice. The gown could be worn by itself or with jewelry limited only by the imagination.

Don't overlook black satin. While it isn't the style scoop it was last year, it's still in there pitching. Satin suits double for afternoon and evening. Besides, they'll back "best" dresses for several years, Faille, darling for the practical, short evening dress, takes to black or navy blue more readily than any other color. Somehow, the nubby fabric is just not too pretty in brighter colors.

Where it isn't used for the full outfit, black will appear in the trimming. One of the prettier suits this year is deep, royal blue with black braid. An all-black hat, maybe with a plume or two, completes an utterly ladylike ensemble.

Yes, for those who can wear it, black will always be king. It may go on vacation for a while, but it just won't abdicate. For there's no other color that will take quite as much in the way of accessories.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

YOU'RE going to want to look like a dream come true in your new party clothes for the exciting Winter social events ahead. But no matter how beautiful your dress may be, it won't look as either you or the designer intended unless your figure is in condition to do it justice.

Whether you are overweight or underweight, now's the time to tackle your problem. But especially so, if you are underweight, because it will take just about three months (just time before Christmas)! to increase your flesh and muscle development by gentle, rhythmic exercise. If underweight's your worry, give yourself the best present you ever had! Pick out what you want most from the following and get going!

Increasing Exercises

For the bust: Sit on the floor tailor fashion; clasp your hands tightly in front of you as you raise your arms until your hands are opposite —and a few inches away from your forehead. Hold your elbows out straight to the side! Now push your clasped hands together until you feel movement in your chest muscles. Keep your back erect. About fifty times a day, slowly and deliberately.

For the arms: Get down on the floor on your hands and knees; arrange your hands so they are no further apart than the width of your shoulders, your fingertips pointing inward toward each other; and place your knees in a position slightly behind your hips. Now bend the elbows until your chin touches the floor. You should do this one slowly, and it's hard! Five times a day is enough in the beginning. Try to work up to twenty times a day in a month.

For Better Underpinnings

For the calf: Stand with one foot about one pace ahead of the other. Come up on your toes. Now slowly bend your knees and gradually sink to the floor or as near to the floor as you can get. Be sure that your back is erect. Rise slowly up on your toes. Alternate your feet and repeat. About ten times is enough.

For the thighs: Stand with your hands on your hips. Raise one leg to the side as high as possible without twisting your trunk. Repeat on the opposite side. Work up to fifteen times on both sides.

Caution: Never overstrain when performing your exercises. If you feel tired after you've done a few, lie flat on the floor for five minutes before you continue. Rest again after you've completed your routine Learn to do them all with slow grace and in slow motion.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON.

GEN. CARLOS ROMULO, just elected President of the United Nations General Assembly, may be the World's No. 1 Statesman, but he also is probably the World's Shortest Statesman . . . Standing 5 feet 4 inches (in his specially built, concealed platform shoes). Romulo made history by getting the biggest voting majority ever given in an election for a U. N. President.

AUSTINE

But he's remembered in Washington (where he served as Philippine delegate in Congress) as one of the few really sincere foreign officials. He is also remembered as a man of unique distinction . . . At least by Serge Fliegers, the newsman who's doing a biography on Romulo for publication soon.

Fliegers claims Romulo is the first man in history to take his oath on the floor of the House of Representatives in BOBBY SOCKS.

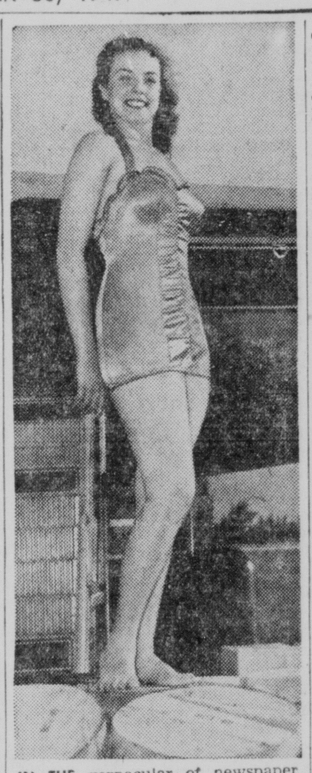

Romulo had brought only one uniform when he arrived in Washington from MacArthur's headquarters to take his place as Philippine Envoy to Congress . . . Flabbergasted when he had to take his oath of office in "civvies," he dashed out to purchase a complete new outfit. . . . At the last minute, discovered to his horror he had forgotten to buy socks . . . So borrowed from a young girl in his office her white tennis socks. The fiery, unpredictable Romulo has made other history since then . . . Seems he was the cause of the first official U. N. break between Yugoslavia and the Soviet . . . Yugoslavia voted FOR him, casting their first ballot in OPPOSITION to their former Russian bosses.

WHEN Romulo was scheduled to make his first presidential speech, a worried official asked him:

"What sort of a speech do you intend to make, Mr. President?"

"I have two types of political speeches," Romulo said. "First, there is the Mother Hubbard speech. Like the garment, it covers everything and touches nothing."

"Then," he added, "there's my French Bathing Suit speech. Covers only the essential points."

IN THE vernacular of newspaper lensmen, "cheesecake" has long been a label for any photo showing a pretty girl wearing a bathing suit—or less. But here is the real thing. Throughout the first course Chauncey Depew, then a senator, kept eyeing the bare flesh of Miss Garden's curvaceous shoulders.

He couldn't stand it any longer . . . Finally turned to her and inquired mischievously, "Miss Garden, do tell me what keeps your dress up?"

Mary lowered her eyes with fake modesty, "Chauncey, my dear, only your 70-odd years!"

National Pattern On Pensions Seems Near

As Philip Murray and "Big Steel" continue negotiations over the issue of a 10-cent per hour pension and insurance package, and while the country hopes a steel strike will be averted, announcement has been made that the Ford Motor Company has agreed to do what "Big Steel" has, up to the time this was written, refused to do—pay workers' pensions.

Organized labor in general has looked to the steel negotiations for a pattern. The movement for a fourth-round wage increase has lost most of its impetus since the Steelworkers agreed not to demand one. Now that Ford has agreed to pay pensions, and if "Big Steel" also agrees to shoulder the cost of such a program, a national pattern will have been set.

When Congress passed the Social Security Act in 1935, it adopted the principle that government is the proper agency to handle old-age pensions, and that contributions be made equally by workers and employers. For many years the unions had urged this plan, arguing wisely that only such a system could protect all workers in business and industry. But union sentiment is changing. In the coal, steel, motor car and other industries, workers have demanded company-financed pensions, in addition to or as a substitute for wage increases.

The steel fact-finding board encouraged this demand with its remark that the worker is not a machine, to be discarded when broken or worn out. Of course he is not. But is he an automaton who must be cared for without any effort on his own behalf?

It's probably old-fashioned to argue nowadays that Federal social security encourages saving on the part of workers. But the fact-finding board itself recognized the practical problem of requiring all companies to foot pension bills without regard to their size or ability to pay. It left the way open for contributory plans.

The question is not whether "Big Steel" can afford to finance a 10-cent per hour pension and insurance plan, but whether the smaller steel companies can do so. A larger question is whether the multitude of small businesses and industries throughout the country can afford to follow, upon demand, a pattern set by industry-wide bargaining in steel.

The Problem Of A-Bomb Control And Soviet Union

The atomic explosion—or explosions—inside Russia focussed world attention on the problem of atom control and gave Russian Foreign Minister Vishinsky a tense audience for his speech before the UN General Assembly. Without referring to President Truman's electrifying announcement, Vishinsky led off, as usual, with an attack on "Anglo-American war-mongers," but followed with the suggestion of a Big Five peace pact, together with "unconditional prohibition" of atomic weapons and international control of atomic energy.

Like everything else Vishinsky says, that statement was clearly designed to make the greatest possible impression on gullible listeners without committing Soviet Russia to anything. A ban on atomic weapons means nothing without the right of inspection and power of enforcement. The UN Atomic Energy Commission, backed by the Western powers, has repeatedly urged control by inspection of plants and raw material sources and power of enforcement. Again and again, Russia has refused to go along, stubbornly insisting upon "prohibition" by fiat.

The most the commission has ever been able to get Russia to approve was an international agency to carry out limited inspections and special inquiries. But the Russians have flatly opposed giving such an agency power of enforcement. All findings, they insisted, must be submitted to the UN Security Council where Russia holds a veto power.

Now that Russia apparently has the atomic bomb, there is even less likelihood of effective control than before. The statement by the Soviet news agency Tass again calls for "prohibition," but dos not hint at acceptance of the Baruch control plan or anything like it.

Thanks to the scientific lead and the stockpile of the United States, Russia's possession of the A-bomb —assuming she has it—does not necessarily bring war nearer, though it would probably mean vastly greater destruction should war come. Scientists believe, however, that the wider the ownership of the A-bomb, the less likely is its use in a future conflict. Now that Russia as well as the United States has the bomb, Britain and Canada will doubtless have it soon. The theory is that the power of retaliation tends to cancel out the value of hideously destructive weapons which are hard to control. Thus, American advances in the poison gas field restrained Hitler from unloosing that insidious weapon, and we would not use it first.

There is more ground for hope, however, in the military truth that no power could win a war with the atomic bomb alone.

Truman's Own Crew To Do What He Ridicules

Next Spring 150,000 political appointees will begin making the rounds in the decennial census at a cost of $70,000,000. That's more people and more money than formerly, but the country has freer ideas about spending.

The enumerators will not only count noses, but they will attempt to pry a tremendous lot of information out of homes and businesses. The announcement that not every householder will be asked voluminous questions is puzzling, however. Just a home here and there will be grilled in detail by the well-known sampling method. These selected homes will be taken as representative of the whole country and national statistics will be based upon them.

This, after the sampling flop in the 1948 presidential campaign by Gallup, Roper and Crossley. They picked a citizen here and there, asked how he was going to vote and on the basis of skimpy information received predicted a Dewey landslide.

Has the Persident heard about this plan? He made plenty of sarcastic remarks about the sampling pollsters. Surely he cannot know that his own crew is adopting the very method that he ridicules.

A girl won an oratorical contest in Indiana. It's nice to know the girls are learning to talk a little.

A Virus Visits The Liver

EPIDEMICS OF JAUNDICE are common during wartime and the recent conflict was a difference, however, because in World War II, a concentrated effort was made by the government to settle the problem once and for all. As a result, more progress was made along this line in a few years than ever before in history. It was found also that several types of jaundice, formerly considered separate diseases, were in reality one and the same—namely, infectious hepatitis.

The malady was suspected from the first as sewage-borne because it usually appeared where conditions were insanitary. This was substantiated when the discovery was made that the causative agent was a filtrable virus which was passed along via the contaminated discharges of afflicted persons. This explains the epidemic behavior of the ailment whenever large armies are assembled but not its occasional occurrence among the civilian population. We now know that in such instances, infectious hepatitis follows a cold or respiratory disturbance in which the same virus is playing a role. The organism settled in the liver ultimately, causing the inflammation and swelling necessary to produce jaundice.

Infectious hepatitis develops as a rule between 18 to 40 days after exposure. The temperature rises, appetite is lost, and the victim feels "washed out." Associated complaints are headache, a chilly sensation, nausea, vomiting, and itching of the skin. Now and then mild aching is noted in the upper right part of the abdomen, suggesting that trouble is brewing in the liver. Otherwise the manifestations may be mistaken for a cold or an intestinal upset because the yellowish tinge to the skin and the eyeballs is not present in every patient. On the other hand when jaundice appears, the diagnosis is obvious.

The sufferer may remain in this state for several weeks, depending upon the severity of the disease. In mild cases the color starts to fade within a few days; appetite and the feeling of well being begin to return at the same time. In others, six or more weeks elapse before recovery ensues. Convalescence generally is prolonged and many feel weak and depressed for months thereafter. There are no specific remedies while lying in bed A diet rich in protein and carbohydrates saves wear and tear on the liver. Rest is of the utmost importance; those who become active too soon are likely to encounter recurrences.

The causative virus is carried in the blood also and often remains in the system from six months to a year. If the victim decides to donote blood after he feels well, there is a chance that the organism may be transmitted to others. This happened during the war when large quantities were pooled by the Red Cross. As a result, many individuals come down with jaundice from 60 to 120 days after receiving plasma. Since these cases cannot be traced, it is not known whether this is the same virus that produces infectious hepatitis but a relationship is suggested. To distinguish the two types the term, serum jaundice, is used when the disease follows a transfusion. The processing of blood kills bacteria but not viruses.

Moreover, during the war, many soldiers and sailors developed jaundice after being inoculated against yellow fever. It was thought at first that the serum was faulty and led to yellow fever, but the cause of jaundice proved to be a filtrable virus. The virus was traced to certain pools of human serum which had been employed as an ingredient of the vaccine. When this was eliminated, no one thereafter developed hepatitis following inoculation against yellow fever.

I wish I could say "yes." Sometimes removal of an existing nasal obstruction or the cutting of an elongated uvula will help. Many snorers do not perform if they stay off their backs.

The Healthy Years

B. M. T. writes: At what periods of life does the average man have the greatest need for the services of a physician?

REPLY

Before 10 and after 50. However, if more persons employed the physician before 50, there would be less need for them in later decades.

Swollen Tongue

M. N. writes: What causes the tongue to feel thick and heavy?

REPLY

The organ usually feels this way when it is swollen due to inflammation, irritation, or an allergic condition. Now and then a glandular disturbance is responsible.

REPLY

No. The bursa develops a part of the bunion and accounts for much of the discomfort in this condition.

NEW CONCESSION OPENS ON THE MIDWAY

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Both Sides In Steel Dispute Have Been Tied By Other Forces; Lawyer Who Defended Bilbo Still Awaits Payment; Truman Promises Rural Phones

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29. — One factor which has made the steel dispute so difficult is that both sides' hands have been semi-tied by other forces.

Tier Of Phil Murray's Hands Is—John L. Lewis. Since Lewis an old rival and bitter enemy of Murray, got a welfare fund from the coal operators under which the miners pay nothing, Murray cannot require his union to contribute to pensions without losing part of his membership.

Tiers of U. S. Steel's Hands Are—Its banks and directors. The men who control the big steel companies, particularly U. S. Steel, are J. P. Morgan together with a group of industrialists and insurance men who do not want a pension pattern set for their industries. If the steel industry pays pensions without any contribution from labor, it will set a standard for almost every other industry in the country.

Who Runs U. S. Steel?

For instance, directors of U. S. Steel include:

Walter Gifford—Chairman of the giant American Telegraph and Telephone Company, which also faces wage and pensions problems.

Sewell Avery—Head of Montgomery Ward, who once was ejected from his Chicago office by U. S. troops during a labor strike. Avery is also chairman of U. S. Gypsum, director of the Pullman Company, Pure Oil, Armour, Peoples Gas, Light and Coke, which also face wage and pension problems.

James Black—Head of Pacific Gas and Electric, a guiding executive of the Southern Pacific Railway and director of various insurance and utility companies.

George A. Sloan — Director of Goodyear Tire, Bankers Trust, American Alliance Insurance Co., and a group of insurance companies.

When the President's fact-finding board first published its recommendations, Sept. 10, for a 10-cent pension and insurance plan, some U. S. Steel executives indicated to newsmen that this would be acceptable. Then, suddenly, on Sept. 11, word was passed out that the bankers behind U. S. Steel objected. They did not want big steel to set up a pension pattern for other industries under which labor did not contribute.

Note 1—John L. Lewis already has started to crow over Phil Murray in the United Mine Workers Journal for surrendering on the fourth round of wage increases. Insiders say he is just itching to crow again on any Murray compromise over pensions.

Note 2—It was U. S. Steel—which owns extensive captive coal mines—which helped set the welfare fund pattern by which John L. Lewis and his miners do not have to contribute to the fund. If this precedent had not been set, it would have been easier for both Murray and the steel industry to do business.

Bilbo's Lawyer

It looks like the lawyer who defended the late Senator Bilbo of Mississippi against charges brought in the U. S. Senate would now be paid $6,000 by the same Senate which did not seat Bilbo.

The lawyer, Forrest Jackson, served as Bilbo's attorney in warding off impeachment. Bilbo, because of his health, was never impeached, and died before any proceedings were brought.

Therefore, since it is customary for the taxpayers to pay for a Senator's defense as long as he is not impeached, Attorney Jackson turned in his bill to the Senate, and the man who replaced Bilbo, Sen. John Stennis, tried to get the Senate to pay.

However, Rules Chairman Curley Brooks of Illinois who was supposed to pass on the matter, pleaded that he was up for re-election, begged Stennis to hold up the bill until the 81st Congress.

Now Stennis has submitted the bill to the new rules chairman, Sen. Carl Hayden of Arizona, and a subcommittee quietly approved the $6,000 fee. It is planned to bring the matter up quietly on the Senate floor during routine business in order to avoid publicity.

Truman On Farm Phones

One of the first persons President Truman saw after announcing that Russia had exploded the atom was genial Jim Patton, boss of the National Farmers union.

"That's mighty tough business, Mr. President," Patton said, as he entered the presidential office.

"I had to make the announcement once we were sure," replied Truman, in tight-lipped seriousness. "I can assure you it wasn't tasteful."

Turning to a more peaceful topic, the President promised Patton his full support in getting the rural telephone bill through the Senate during this session. It has already passed the House.

"Farmers are really steamed up about this bill," reported Patton. "They feel they have as much right to a telephone as city folks. Also, the practical need for bringing phone service to farms that do not have it is getting more urgent all the time. Brooders and other equipment on a great many farms are now operated by electricity.

"When there are breakdowns, farmers have great difficulty getting a repair man if they don't have telephones."

"Jim, we'll get that bill enacted," predicted Truman, "even though we're fighting one of the biggests trusts in the country."

Note—The President referred to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which has been lobbying vigorously against the rural telephone bill.

Merry-Go-Round

Congress seems to be over the unemployment jitters. A few weeks ago, the joint committee on the economic report was all steamed up to investigate unemployment. But the whole thing has now been quietly called off . . . . Jimmy Roosevelt and Congresswoman Helen Douglas were the two stars of the western states Democratic conference. Sen. Sheridan Downey, California's one Democratic member of the upper chamber, who snubbed President Truman last year, didn't even show up . . . . It now looks certain that Mrs. Douglas will oppose Downey for the Senate. Jimmy Roosevelt has the Democratic nomination for governor sewed up . . . . President Truman has assured intimates that he will not back down on his appointment of Leland Olds, liberal member of the Federal Power Commission, for a third term. Olds' appointment, which is bitterly opposed by the private power trust, has been boxed up in the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee for months.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Dirty Words

WASHINGTON

WITH rather desperate haste, the chief American political and strategic policy-makers are now working on plans to deal with the new situation created by "the atomic explosion somewhere in Russia." Their directive from President Truman has been to solve a program which will provide genuine security for this country, regardless of other considerations.

According to those who should know, the President has responded to the challenge of the Beria bomb with the courage that marked his sponsorship of the draft bill two years ago. If Truman does not weaken and his advisers do their jobs honestly and well, there can be only one result. The country will shortly be presented with a program entirely overshadowing all our previous great measures to solve the problem of Soviet imperialism.

No hint of this fact has yet been given for two reasons. First, the program is not ready. Second, the President has calculated his timing very carefully. In order to avoid accusations of scare-mongering, he purposely delayed announcement of the Beria bomb, until the Senate had safely passed the Military Aid Program for Europe. In the same manner, in order to avoid accusations of war-mongering, he is waiting now until the Soviets have proved once again that they will not accept true international control of nuclear energy.

Rallying Call To Follow

When this proof has been given, as it should shortly be, the time will come for President Truman to issue the rallying call for a great national effort. The reasons why this effort must be so great are plainly inherent in the basic security situation.

As was first disclosed in this space, all defense planning of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has long been founded on the expectation that the Beria bomb would be produced in 1952. But the first Beria bomb has now been tested in 1949 (and is considered by our scientists to have proved as powerful as our Nagasaki bomb, and therefore better than the bomb that destroyed Hiroshima). This in turn both violently contracts, and gives dire urgency to, the whole defense timetable.

On the basis of the 1952 date, the Joint Chiefs of Staff allowed five years or our defense build-up, counting three years until the Soviets produce a bomb and two more for them to accumulate a decisive stockpile of their new weapon. The job for which five years was formerly allowed must now be done in two years at the outside. To take one specific example, the Joint Chiefs had projected expenditures of $1.8 to $2 billion annually for European re-armament, intending to complete this vital program at a total cost of $8 to $10 billion at the end of the five-year period. The contraction of the time schedule will, if anything, increase the total cost. And thus Western European re-armament, if seriously carried forward, must become a $5 billion item in the 1950 and 1951 budgets.

This rule will hold for almost all defense spending. Moreover, mere physical defense is by no means the only problem. While this country is presently beyond range of mass attack from Soviet bases, Europe is within easy range. A decisive stockpile of Beria bombs is defined as enough of these weapons to break all European resistance. And these grim facts are always having sharp political effects upon our allies.

Unless we choose to confront an expanding Soviet empire in naked isolation, we must therefore move forward on the political and economic fronts as well as on the defense front. Hard solutions must be found for all the Atlantic community's pressing problems, such as those revealed by the British economic crisis. Even with this kind of strong American support, our allies will need great courage not to desert the united front against Soviet imperialism. And if we fail our allies in any respect whatever, we must expect our allies to fail us.

Must Safeguard Weak Flank

Add to the list of things to be done the task of safeguarding the free world's weak Far Eastern flank. Remember also that there can never be true peace without a fundamental change in the world power balance, and that the best hope of this change lies in energetic steps to promote Titoism among Russia's unhappy satellites. The sum of the essential program is seen to demand something very like American peace-time mobilization for the cold war.

Precisely because the effort demanded is so great, the implications of the Beria bomb are already becoming dirty words, unmentionable in polite society. Perhaps the President will after all avoid any crude public statement of the new facts of life in the world, or any troublesome attempt to deal with those facts. But one must hope he will live up to the expectations of some of the best men around him; for the facts are nonetheless and will exact their penalty if ignored.

The Russian Atom Bomb Changes Global Strategy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—Despite the outward appearance of calm and the oft-reiterated statements that there has been and will not be "any change" in policy or planning on the part of the United States, it is worth noting that since the announcement of the Russian A-bomb explosion there has been considerably more activity here than customary on the part of the planning groups in the government.

Discussions go on by the hour nowadays as to what will be the impact of the atom-bomb news when the peoples here and abroad really begin to digest the meaning of it.

Unfortunately, some impulsive expressions tend to cloud the issue. There are those who cry out for speeding up atom-bomb production as if it were an automobile assembly line. The amount of fissionable material available is limited. Also the possession of 500 A-bombs, for example, may constitute an adequate stockpile for America and only 200 may be enough for Russia.

Everything depends on how the A-bomb is to be used, and the more the subject is studied the more one is inclined to believe that the A-bomb will not be used at all.

Whether by international agreement or by unilateral decision to refrain from using it, the A-bomb has, in effect, already been outlawed.

Stalemate of Unprecedented Size

A stalemate of unprecedented proportions has brought this about. For if Russia has a stockpile of 200 bombs, she can threaten Europe. Totalitarian governments do not send messages declaring war. They strike suddenly as Hitler did at Warsaw and as the Japanese fleet of aircraft carriers did at Pearl Harbor.

What can a democracy which does not believe in preventive war or aggressive war do about it? Presumably Russia would know the zero hour, and no other country would. Presumably also Russia would gradually evacuate her cities. Then a counter-attack by A-bombs might not be disastrous in a military sense for Russia. Factories, of course, and munitions dumps would be underground. The idea that they are going to be a lot of industrial installations to bomb from the air may turn out to be a myth in the next war.

Assuming that Russia has enough bombs to strike Europe suddenly, the mere threat of A-bomb attack can change the psychology of Europe. Would not Europeans want America to refrain from using the A-bomb if the Russian armies started their attack without using the A-bomb? Wouldn't the European peoples plead for orthodox or conventional weapons rather than to invite the throwing of A-bmbs by the Russians?

These are questions which the military planners now will have to answer. For Europe has suddenly become endangered beyond the power of any fleet of strategic bombers to overcome.

Curiously enough, the case for the ground army has been talked up significantly in these last few days. The European arms aid program means the training and equipping of large land armies to restrain a Russian advance across Europe and to support the morale of Iron Curtain countries which may waver in their alliances with the Soviets.

The theory that ground armies, protected by substantial units of tactical aviation and mechanized weapons, will play a larger part in future wars than the role hitherto assigned is gaining support. Similarly, naval protection for American cargo ships carrying fuel and supplies to overseas armies takes on new importance.

It is true that American planners expected Russia to have the A-bomb sooner or later, but it is also true that nobody really expected the Soviets to make the progress they have made. What might have happened in 1952 has happened in 1949. This means that the idea of building up a substantial number of heavy bombers as a means of deterring Russian aggression now has to give way to more effective military strength inside Europe to meet the Russian advance if it ever comes.

The military leaders are not going to announce what changes they have in mind. But budgets in democracies are made public, and soon the world will learn of the rearrangement or reallocation of military, naval and air strength so far as America is concerned. Presently the European governments will enter the debate and state their needs. The Russian A-bomb has changed global strategy. There is no doubt about it.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Stalin

ISAAC Deutscher's biography "Stalin," comes importantly at a moment when Stalin is probably the most significant person on this earth. He not only is despot over 600,000,000 human beings, but he has thoroughly organized agencies in every country consisting of men and women who obey his will and adore him as though he were a god.

Two important biographies of Stalin have heretofore appeared, Souvarine's and Trotzky's, and neither may be regarded as objective, if objectivity is possible in this field. Certainly, the Deutscher book, brilliantly written, is not objective. Mr. Deutscher, while he obviously abhors Stalin, would save the reputation of Stalin's government. This becomes clear in the selection of his material, in the omissions and in the consistency of certain types of errors. It is impossible to divorce Stalin from his government, because he is the government.

Nevertheless, this is an important and valuable book and will be read with advantage by those who are interested in the freak personality that Stalin undoubtedly is. For this man by birth, figure, training and intellectual endowments is unfitted for the task in which he has succeeded so magnificently and yet so damnably. Trotzky's biography is tougher reading than Deutscher's, who possesses a pliant pen.

I made the point that selection and omission were inevitable because this is not and could not be a definitive work, first, because much of the basic material cannot yet be available and, secondly, because the author had to bring his manuscript down to a single volume.

What I find difficult to understand is the consistency in the type of error of fact, and I find that other students of the Russian revolution have discovered the same phenomenon, one of them having compiled a list of such errors which forms a pattern that is puzzling.

For instance, Mr. Deutscher questions the legitimacy of the Provisional Government which in 1917 took over after the Revolution and which Lenin and Trotzky overthrew. He says:

". . . The constitutional title-deeds of the (Provisional) Government were dubious; it was formed on the initiative of a few members of the last DUMA, the discredited quasi-parliament which had, moreover, been disbanded by the Tsar."

In the first place, no revolutionary government can be legitimate, as that would be a contradiction in terms. The last legitimate government of Russia was that of Czar Nicholas II who abdicated to his brother. Then came the Provisional Government which could have had no "constitutional title-deeds," as it seized power. Certainly the Bolshevik government of Lenin and Trotzky was illegitimate because it too seized power. I was there at the time and witnessed their brutal reign of terror. Certainly Stalin's despotism has no "constitutional title-deeds."

Historically, of what importance is all this? And that has puzzled me because I cannot understand why Deutscher raises the issue. Similarly when he describes Lenin's trip from Switzerland across Germany to Russia in a sealed car, he says that this was arranged "by French, Swedish and German Socialists." This is quite untrue. The deal was made by Parvus, a German secret agent, Count Brockdorff-Rantzau, later German ambassador to Russia, Erzberger, chief of German military propaganda, and Count Maltzan, associated with the German General Staff.

This is so amply documented that it is surprising that Deutscher omits it, unless he seeks to save the reputation of the birth of Stalin's government.

In a word, certain events which occurred in 1917, either immediately before or during the period when I worked in Russia as a newspaper editor in the city of Petrograd, do not come out precisely as I witnessed them or heard about them from some who were most active in them. Also in places, Deutscher conflicts with Angelica Balabanoff, who played an important part in the party activities of those days, she being the first secretary of the Third International.

Apart from such consistent errors, the Deutscher book is the best yet on Stalin and will serve the purposes of those who want to know about the man rather than the background of events that raised him to the throne of Ivan the Terrible in whose image he rules.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 29, (INS)—A neat, quiet man moved about New York yesterday, bent upon his calling: the sale of insurance. His name was (and is) Lewis Cotlow, and those he encountered—at least, those who didn't know him—must have regarded him as just another business man.

A few weeks ago he squatted in an Amazon jungle talking to an Indian clan chieftain named Utitayea.

"How many men have you killed?" he asked the Jibero.

Utitayea thought for a time, then solemnly counted off 57 on his fingers. Sotlow turned to his interpreter. "How about his friend there?" he asked. The interpreter put the question to a rival chieftain, and got an answer.

"He says twenty eight," the interpreter replied.

"Ask him why Utitayea has killed more?" Cotlow asked, and after a time the man gave back his answer:

"Utitayea is older."

Cotlow, a young man who closes shop in Wall Street for a few months every year to engage in trips that would frighten a lion, was making his third visit to an Ecuadorean tribe so primitive that the progressive Ecuadorean goverment steps in only when one of its members kills outside the immediate neighborhood.

"Ask Utitayea why he killed these people?" Cotlow requested.

Utitayea seemed surprised at such a simple question from a man who had been there before. But, with a shrug, he answered, "When I was six my father told me, as all fathers must tell their sons, that anyone who dies is the victim of a curse placed on his head by someone who knows him. There is no natural death.

"He told me that whenever I see death in the family I must consult the (witch) doctor and ask him who placed the curse. Then, if I am able, I must kill that person—so that the soul of the dead member of my family may rest . . . When I was eleven I went off by myself and chewed the cocoa leaf until I dreamed. Then I dreamed that I killed a jaguar, and the doctor later told me that it meant I would never be killed by an enemy while I atoned the deaths in my family."

Thinking over the interview yesterday, Cotlow said Utitayea's wife sat at his feet and cried throughout the recital, an unusual show of emotion for a Jibero wife. I asked why, and it turned out that their daughter had been carried off by an enemy a few weeks before, an neither Utitayea nor the witch doctor could decide which one."

His color films of the Jiberos, Chocos, San Blas, Los Colorados (who paint themselves a bright red) and other incredible tribes existing as cave men existed—and hardly a day's flight from Miami—are so good that Julian Lesser, of Thalia productions, will bring them out as a feature.

Cotlow, who lives the only double life that can be countenanced in his New York set, it says here, had hoped to call on an old friend named Peruche, a Jibero chieftain who had once nursed him back to health during an earlier visit.

The Jiberos, once they lose interest in a visitor's head, are quite friendly, he told us. And have a high ham quotient. Cotlow had some colored pictures of Peruche to present to him, along with some beads, Boy Scout knives, mirrors (what?—no journals?) and other peace-offerings of Christopher Columbus's time. He knew Peruche would be pleased.

But he found only additional tragedy. About six months ago, Peruche paid a social call on a neighboring clan. On the way back to his hut he was bitten by a poisonous snake, and died. His sons asked a witch doctor named Brujo to indicate the enemy, and after communing with himself for a time, Brujo said, "the last two friends Peruche saw." Peruche's sons promptly killed them.

Cotlow was 40 miles from the center of the disastrous earthquake which brought such woe to Ecuador last summer.

"I thought I was in the middle of it, the ground shook so savagely," he told us. "But then I saw what happened where it was at its worst, and the ruins are incredible. I have respect for the A-bomb, but it isn't possible that one could effect as much damage as that shake did. They'll be digging bodies out of the ruins of obscure villages for another months."

He urges that people who can afford it send warm clothing, blankets, shoes, hats and anything else they have handy to the Ecuadorean Relief Fund, the official relief organization set up by the governments of the 21 American republics. The address is, care of Pan American Union, Washington 6, D. C. The donors will be twice blessed.

War production board studies estimated that inefficient vision held back war production from 25 to 40 per cent.

Now The Schools Go To The Laboratory

AP Newsfeatures

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — Do you want to know what your children study in school and why? The answer can be found in a converted quonset hut on the campus of Rutgers University.

It is open to teachers, parents and others. Just wander from exhibit to exhibit. It's New Jersey's first attempt at a full-scale curriculum laboratory.

Donald C. DeHart, lecturer in the School of Education of the State University is in charge. The object of the laboratory is to "help schools in revising and improving their curricula."

As envisaged by DeHart, the laboratory could offer schools professional advice and could show the latest types of teaching materials through exhibits and bibliographical lists of source materials.

The project has no financial backing now. It depends on sources which will supply free materials.

A group of volunteer student assistants working in the laboratory gathered orange crates and cardboard boxes for use as shelves and files.

The laboratory now offers a sampling of courses of study used in various states and towns; a collection of pamphlets, charts, and posters distributed by industry; materials of all types gathered from government agencies, foreign embassies, and the United Nations; a sampling of up-to-date textbooks; book listings; and a few films. A U. N. Education Center is part of the laboratory.

To date, two other groups have entered the project as co-sponsors with the Rutgers School of Education. They are the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, and the State Department of Education.

Two Welshmen Tour U. S. For $14

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—Two young Welshmen sailed for home today after an 8,600-mile American tour that cost them $14.50.

Kenneth Coslett, 22, and Bill Havard, 24, said they hitch-hiked, accepted gifts of food, slept in jails when necessary, and appeared on quiz programs to finance their two-month junket.

"We lived like kings," said Havard, a bishop's son, "after we won quiz contests in Los Angeles and Chicago.

"There's no question that we're mad, but my father thinks it's better for us to be mad now when we can afford it than later when we can't."

Havard is a graduate of Christ Church College, Oxford. Coslett, an insurance salesman's son, is an Oxford undergraduate.

They got the idea of seeing America from hearing Rhodes scholars talk about it. So they sold Havard's motorcycle to raise passage money and landed in New York with $20 between them. Their joint kitty was $5.50 when they sailed today on the liner Washington.

Hitch-hiking proved easy. They got one lift from Albert Lea, Minn., to Yellowstone National Park—1,400 miles.

Their verdict? Quite a country. "We liked the people best," Coslett said. "Girls? A bishop's son will never answer that, but speaking for myself, I found them easy to know and talk to."

Lane Stresses Financial Aid Of Sales Tax

All five counties in the Sixth Congressional District get more money back from the state than they contribute in sales tax payments, Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., told 300 Democratic officials and party workers at a district rally in Hagerstown Wednesday night.

Gov. Lane stressed the importance of the sales tax in aiding Maryland to accomplish its huge program of new highways, schools and state institutions.

During his administration, Lane said, minimum pay of teachers has been increased from $1,500 to $2,200 annually, and 900 miles of main highways and secondary roads have been constructed and improved or are in process of such work.

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, Allegany County's sales tax payments amounted to $998,232.36, while during the same period $1,434,888.77 was distributed by the state to the county and various municipalities, Lane pointed out.

If the county had attempted to raise that amount by taxation, the tax rate would have been increased by $1.28, he commented.

Two other speakers at Wednesday's banquet called for more participation by women in politics and more representation of women on the various county, state and national committees of the Democratic party.

They were Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, Baltimore, Democratic national committeewoman, and Mrs. India Edwards, Harwood, Md., executive director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee.

At a separate afternoon meeting of the men's group, Lane said the Democratic party has led the country for 18 years and is looked to internationally for leadership and guidance.

Chairmen of the State Central Committees of Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick and Montgomery Counties, including William L. Wilson, Jr., this city, who presided, and Grover C. Stemple, Oakland, reported on party activities.

Co-ordinated politcial activity at the precinct level was urged as one way in which the Sixth District could again be brought into the Democratic column.

William C. Walsh, local attorney who is former attorney general of Maryland, outlined the history of the Democratic party in the Sixth District and stressed party harmony, in a talk at the evening banquet.

Toastmaster was C. William Hetzer, Williamsport, State Central Committee chairman for Washington County. The rally was held at the Hotel Alexander.

Youth Held In Second Entry

Harry Stewart, Jr., 19, of 416 Park Street, facing grand jury action on a breaking and entering charge, was arrested again yesterday morning after an FBI report implicated him in another entry.

Detectives Thomas J. See and Ernest M. Powell arrested Stewart after learning that his fingerprints were identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the same as those found at Williams Grocery Store, 216 Avirett Avenue, Spetember 5.

Police said they found Stewart's fingerprints on glass broken from a side window, through which they said a burglar entered and took $70 from the cash register.

Stewart and Patrick Dentinger, this city, were ordered held for the grand jury earlier this month in a Trial Magistrates Court hearing on charges they entered the home of Mrs. Vera Robinson, 106 Park Street. Stewart was later released under $250 bond.

BACK IN LONDON after attending the recent "dollar talks" in Washington, U. S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas arrives at the Embassy and is greeted by his wire-haired terrier "Reggie." He told his pet: "It's grand to be back." To newsmen, he denied reports that he had handed in his resignation to President Truman while in Washington. (International)

Area 4-H Boys Win State Fair Contest

Two Little Orleans boys have been notified their demonstration of farm machinery took first place at the state fair early this month, Assistant County Agent Joseph M. Steger said yesterday.

The boys, James Smith and Ted Puffenberger, received a $20 prize for topping their class at the event September 6 and 7.

Smith and Puffenberger demonstrated the proper use of oil filters on a tractor and the care of the implement.

Both boys were winners in the same class last year with a demonstration on air filters.

With announcement of the results in the machinery demonstration, Allegany County boys have taken first place in two of the five general classes.

Clyde Warnick and Edward Orndorff, both of Rawlings, won the vegetable judging contest at the state fair.

The real name of Pocahontas was Matoaka. Pocahontas is an Indian nickname meaning he or she is playful.

Try Cookie Tarts For Fall Snacks

A lazy evening for the family spent around the radio or television set or just "plain relaxing" in big easy chairs calls for special refreshments. And what could be better than freshly baked cooky-tarts and mugs of hot chocolate. The aroma from the kitchen is enough to tease someone out to help mother!

Homemakers will enjoy the convenience of this versatile recipe that will make four different kinds of cooky-tarts. A half recipe of sugar drop cookies can be topped with red sour cherries or apricot halves. The other half of the recipe has chocolate added and is good with peach slices or crushed pineapple. Each is a taste sensation and easy to make when you have canned fruit handy on your pantry shelf.

FRUIT COOKIE-TARTS—It's a party when you serve fruit cookie-tarts fresh from the oven, with mugs of steaming chocolate. They're easy to make when regular drop cookie dough is the base and canned fruit is used for the top.

FRUIT COOKY-TARTS

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
* Canned fruit

Cream shortening and sugar; add beaten egg and vanilla; blend well. Add the sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Drop from teaspoon 2-inch apart onto greased cooky sheet. Place well drained fruit on top of each and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. (These cooky-tarts are not "cooky-jar" cookies and should be used shortly after baking just as are fruit tarts).

Apricot cooky-tarts: Place well drained apricot halves on cookies and sprinkle with nutmeg.

Red cherry cooky-tarts: Place three or four well drained red sour cherries on cookies; sprinkle with sugar.

Chocolate pineapple tarts: Add two squares unsweetened chocolate, melted, to the cooky dough. Top cookies with well drained crushed pineapple.

* Chocolate Peach Tarts: Add two squares unsweetened chocolate, melted, to the cooky dough. Place well drained peach slices on cookies.

Broiler Provides Simple Way To Cook Tender Steaks

Evenly cooked and well browned steaks, lamb chops and slices of ham are the result of proper broiling methods. This simple, direct heat cooking method is also ideal for bacon or ground beef and lamb patties.

For broiling, Reba Staggs, food authority, advises beef steaks cut at least one inch thick, lamb chops ¾ to 1-inch thick and ham ½ inch thick. Corresponding pork and veal cuts are cooked by braising. This is because fresh pork needs more thorough cooking to bring out its full flavor and if broiled may become dry by the time it is cooked well done. Veal is the young animal and not covered with sufficient fat for broiling.

The broiler rack is adjusted according to the thickness of the meat. One inch cuts are placed about two inches from the heat, two inch cuts three inches from the heat. This low broiling temperature insures less meat shrinkage, therefore, more meat for the homemaker to serve.

With the oven regulator set at "broil" the meat is cooked until the top side is browned, then seasoned. (Steaks and chops brown better if seasoned after browning.) The meat is then turned and browned on the other side, seasoned and served at once on a heated platter.

For the homemaker without a broiler, a heavy frying-pan may be successfully used. This method of cooking meat is called panbroiling. The meat is cooked slowly without water in an uncovered pan. Fat is poured off as it accumulates and the meat turned occasionally to insure even doneness.

Children love jelly tarts which can be made from leftover pie dough. With a round cutter cut circles out of the leftover dough; then cut an equal number of circles with a hole in the center. Put a spoonful of preserves on the plain round, then top with doughnut round. Bake tarts in hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 20 minutes, or until lightly browned.

As ever link sausages are ideally combined with apples. This time sliced apples sprinkled with brown sugar fill a casserole, topped with link sausages. The casserole is baked in a moderate oven until the fruit is tender and the sausages sizzling.

Try These Sandwich Cookies

These days more than ever a well filled cookie jar is in order to meet the frequent request for after school snacks. To tide youngsters over until meal time one simple and nutrition wise answer is chrunchy homemade cookies and a tall glass of milk, says Reba Staggs, home economist.

Small fry and oldsters alike enjoy something different such as a cookie sandwich. Made with plain cookie dough that is shortened with lard the cookies will have a delicious nut-like flavor and stay fresh and tasty to the last bite.

In preparing the sweet sandwiches, the dough is rolled out and cut into rounds. A circle — like a doughnut — is cut out of the center to half of the rounds. When baked and cooled, the cookie rounds are spread with a confectioners' sugar icing and topped with the open centered cookies to reveal the icing.

Various flavorings, vegetable colorings, chopped dates, raisins or cooked fruits thickened with confectioners' sugar give added icing interest.

Cup cakes are slit down the middle and filled with luscious icing for easy carrying in lunch boxes.

MEAT CUT Quiz

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?
A. Pork blade steak.
Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?
A. It comes from the pork shoulder. Blade steaks contain either a blade bone or an arm bone, depending upon the side of the shoulder from which they are cut.
Q. How is it prepared?
A. By braising. Steaks are placed in a frying-pan and browned on both sides in their own or a little added fat. A small amount of liquid is usually added (2 to 4 tablespoons), the pan is covered and the meat allowed to cook over low heat for about 45 minutes or until well done.

Lamb Shanks Give Thrifty Meal Interest

Lamb Shanks, Sauerkraut

Butter or Margarine

Broadening culinary horizons may mean a saving on the food bill as well as tempting new dishes to proudly serve the family. The first adventure into the field of thrifty novel dishes might well begin with lamb shanks. This is a less known cut of meat, therefore, lower in price.

To bring out all the rich full flavor of lamb shanks, they are cooked by moist heat as in braising. Place the shanks in a frying pan with a small amount of hot lard or drippings and brown them on all sides. Add salt and pepper, a small amount of water—about ¼ to ½ cup, then tightly cover the frying-pan and let the meat cook slowly until tender. A low temperature is every bit as important for braising meat as in the other methods of meat cookery. Keep the liquid at a simmering stage—never boiling—for 2 to 2½ hours.

SAVORY LAMB SHANKS—Lamb shanks, sauerkraut, crisp oven browned potatoes and the main fare of mealtime is at a peak of goodness.

With Sauerkraut

Lamb shanks and sauerkraut are a satisfying combination. The browned shanks top the sauerkraut—add a dash of caraway seed for added zest—in a baking dish. The dish is covered and the meat and sauerkraut allowed to cook slowly in a 300° F. oven for about 2 hours.

For a further addition to your list, braise the shanks in a tangy barbecue sauce made with a good mingling of spices, tomatoes and a few cloves of garlic. The shanks are browned as in the usual braising process, the barbecue sauce ingredients added, the pan covered and the meat allowed to cook until tender.

A variation in sauce includes raisins, chopped prunes, brown sugar and onion rings.

Stuffed Shanks

Stuffed lamb shanks present an entirely different finished dish, yet they are prepared in much the same manner with the exception that the meat is completely covered with water. Brown the shanks, add water, seasonings, cover the pan and let the meat simmer until tender. Take the shanks out of the broth and when cool enough to handle, remove the bones. Fill the resulting pocket with a favorite vegetable or fruit stuffing, then place the stuffed shanks in a baking dish and thoroughly heat them in a moderate (350° F.) oven.

Veal Paprika With Rice Is Economical 'Company' Dish

Two pounds of meat will serve six to eight persons bountifully in this delicious veal paprika with fluffy rice border. It's a company dish, too, when it comes from the kitchen with its tangy aroma and its parsley garnish, yet it's very simple to prepare.

The rice, remember, most modern package rice, needs no washing or rinsing either before or after cooking. Simply follow the instructions below and you'll have rice with grains that "stand by themselves", are fluffy and dry.

2 pounds veal; 4 tablespoons shortening, more if necessary; 4 tablespoons flour; 3 teaspoons paprika; Salt and pepper; 1 cup finely minced onion; 1 cup sour cream; 3 cups rice.

Put 1 cup of white rice, 1 teaspoon salt and 2 cups water in a two-quart saucepan. Cover with a tight-fitting lid. Set over a hot flame until it boils vigorously. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and simmer for 14 minutes more. During this time the rice will absorb the water and come out deliciously tender.

Remove the lid to permit the rice to steam dry. Lift rice with a fork to test its consistency. Never stir rice while cooking — and the grains will be separate and tender. Makes approximately 3 cups fluffy white rice.

Cut veal in pieces 1 or 2 inches square. Place in kettle or heavy frying pan with shortening. Sprinkle with flour, paprika, salt and pepper. Stir and cook slowly until veal is browned. Add onion, cover and simmer slowly until onion has nearly disappeared and meat is tender. Add sour cream and simmer several minutes longer. Serve on platter with flaky rice. Garnish with parsley. Serves 6 to 8.

Kiddies will get Halloween fun from individual mincemeat pies with faces cut in the top pastry. Cut round eyes and nose, and grinning mouth in pastry rounds before placing them over the filled mincemeat pies. Flute top and bottom crust with thumb and forefinger. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) 10 minutes. Then reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees F.) and bake about 20 minutes or until browned.

Add These To Sandwich Spread List

Fall spells back to school and likewise back to lunch box preparation for many homemakers. Sandwiches have long been the handy main fare of lunchboxes and as home meals must be ever changing, so must sandwich fillings to spur lunch time interest.

A simple lesson in plump and tasty sandwich filling variety might well start with bacon. This crisp meat when cooked and chopped provides desirable crunchiness and is delightfully combined with sliced olives and cream cheese; peanut butter and pickle relish; baked beans, cabbage and mayonnaise; hard-cooked eggs and chili sauce; mashed banana; peanut butter or tart jelly.

Also there are ideal bread and filling combinations such as chopped ham, celery and mayonnaise spread between slices of raisin bread. Chopped corn beef unites with minced onion, mustard and mayonnaise on rye bread; ground cooked liver with finely chopped carrot, mayonnaise on whole wheat bread.

Other combinations include luncheon meat chopped with American cheese or deviled ham, sliced hard-cooked egg and mayonnaise spread on enriched white bread, potato bread or any of the tasty quick breads.

Caramel Rice Cake Is New King Of Desserts

Bake an upside down rice cake for dinner tonight! It's a rice dessert that is served cold, may be made in the morning. When this cake comes out of the loaf pan it holds its shape, is covered with a rich caramel topping. The light creamy texture of caramel rice cake blends well with whipped cream garnish but thin cream is recommended for the children's portions.

Chuck full of healthful foods, this dessert will become a favorite with everyone in the family.

Ingredients

1½ cups rice, raw
4 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
4 egg yolks
4 teaspoons melted butter
⅔ cup sugar

For Sauce

½ cup sugar

Cook rice 2 or 3 minutes in boiling water and drain. Mix rice with milk and vanilla extract, place in medium sized covered baking dish and bake 45 minutes to 1 hour at 350°F. without stirring or until rice is almost dry. Beat egg yolks in bowl until frothy, then stir in butter and sugar. Mix thoroughly with rice, breaking up rice grains as much as possible.

Melt ½ cup sugar in a 9½ x 5½ x 2½ loaf cake pan stirring constantly over low heat until sugar is dissolved and turns a golden caramel color. Tilt the pan frequently to coat bottom and sides thoroughly with sauce. Then spoon rice into pan. Set pan in a larger pan half filled with hot water and bake in moderate oven for 30 minutes or until cake is firm and lightly browned. Cool rice cake in pan, then unmold on serving dish. Serve with light cream or make up some more caramel sauce.

This will serve 6 persons.

Individual lamb pies are interesting on any dinner table. Brown cubes of lamb in a small amount of hot lard in a frying-pan. Add liquid and bite-sized cubes of favorite vegetables for a savory stew, then pour the combination into pastry lined tart pans. Cover with a pastry topping and bake the pies in a moderate (350°F.) oven for about one hour.

Try mixing a little cinnamon into the granulated sugar used to top homemade doughnuts. Put the cinnamon-sugar in a bag, add doughnuts and shake. Another variation on the doughnut theme is to frost these tender baked treats with seven-minute icing, or to glaze them in a thin confectioners' icing while still hot.

Jam-Filled Coil

Hidden spiral of jam and a candied fruit and nut icing put this coffee cake into the dessert class.

Better allow for seconds when you serve jam-filled coffee cake coil with its attractive fruit-and-nut studded icing.

Make this special occasion bread from a basic sweet yeast dough, using enriched flour for the added B-vitamins and iron it provides. Let dough rest about ten minutes before shaping so that it will be easier to handle. To fashion the coil, roll the dough out to a long thin strip, spread jam over surface, then roll up tightly. Coil the jam-filled roll into a cake pan, putting the sealed edge down. This keeps jam from oozing out and also gives the top of the coffee cake a smooth appearance.

After baking, apply a thin glaze of confectioners' icing to highlight the coil. If desired, chopped fruits and nuts may be pressed into the icing for special occasions. Despite these extras, jam-filled coil makes an economical ending to a luncheon or dinner menu.

JAM-FILLED COIL

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
2½ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ cup jam
½ cup Confactioners Sugar Icing
2 tablespoons chopped candied fruit
2 tablespoons chopped nuts

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, one-fourth cup sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add one cup flour. Mix well. Add egg and lemon rind. Beat well. Add softened yeast. Mix well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise until doubled (about one and one-half hours). When light, punch down. Let rest 10 minutes. Roll out to strip three inches wide and one-eighth inch thick. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Spread evenly with jam. Roll up into tight roll. Coil into greased nine inch layer pan, being sure seam side is down. Let rise until doubled (about one hour). Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Remove from pan. Glaze with Confectioners' Sugar Icing. Sprinkle with chopped fruit and nuts. Makes one nine-inch coffee cake.

Pork Chops Prepared In Unusual Way

Whether the homemaker uses the top of the range or the oven, there's wide variety in braising richly flavored pork chops.

In the basic method of cooking pork chops to develop their true full flavor, they are placed in a frying-pan and slowly browned on both sides in their own fat, or in a small amount of added fat. The meat is seasoned, the pan tightly covered and the chops allowed to cook until done.

Following this procedure, chops are easily prepared Spanish-style. Browned chops are spread with a mixture of catchup and dry mustard. Added to the frying-pan is a combination of vinegar, water and sugar, the pan is covered and the meat allowed to cook slowly for about 45 minutes.

For more variation, pork chops may be browned, than smothered with sliced onion and green pepper. A little liquid is added and the combination covered and cooked until the meat is tender. Chops, also, may be braised in a thickened raisin sauce for flavorsome results. Still another way is breading the chops by firt dipping them in beaten egg, then in fine bread crumbs and cooking in the usual manner.

Stuffed chops are one more interesting change. (For this method the chops should be cut thick.) A pocket is made by cutting into the chops from the side next to the bone, then filled with a good bread, corn, or other favorite stuffing. The stuffed chops are then browned on both sides in a small amunt of hot lard and cooked following the braising process.

For simple oven cooking, pork chops are arrnaged over casseroles. One popular fall combination is pork chops and noodles. Browned chops are placed over cooked noodles in a casserole and cooked, covered, for about one hour. Also, the rich pork drippings enhance the flavor of scalloped potatoes, baked beans, or tart apple dressing.

Chop suey welcomes a different accompaniment. It's shredded cereal toasted in melted butter or margarine and served hot, topped with the tempting meat combination.

Liver Spoon Cakes

1 pound sliced liver
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, beaten
4 tablespoons lard or drippings

Add just enough drippings (about 1 tablespoonful) to frying-pan to prevent liver from sticking. Cook sliced liver until lightly browned on each side, about 5 minutes. (Do not cook until done.) Grind liver, add salt, pepper and beaten eggs. Mix well. Drop mixture by tablespoonfuls into hot drippings and brown well on both sides. 4 servings.

For an interesting edible centerpiece pour corn bread batter into a greased ring mold. When baked, fill the ring with creamed ham and serve immediately.

How's Your Cooking Vocabulary?

As in other arts, cookery has its own special terms. Whether a new or an old cook, Reba Staggs, home economist, suggests these common terms for testing your culinary vocabulary.

Panbroil — to cook meat in an open frying-pan, pouring off fat as it accumulates.

Fricassee — a meat dish, made by cutting meat in pieces, browning in small amount of fat, cooking slowly in stock, gravy or sauce in covered utensil.

Marinate — to allow food to stand in liquid — usually French dressing or a mixture of oil and vinegar.

Meat Stock — liquid resulting from the cooking of meat in water.

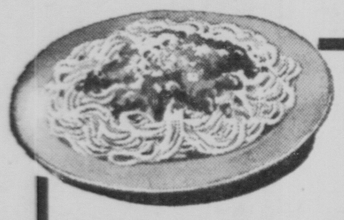

Roast — to cook meat by dry heat (uncovered), usually in an oven.

Julienne — meat or vegetables cut in long, slender strips.

Cooked bacon bits are added to muffin batter for unusual appeal. The batter is poured into a greased pie pan, baked, then cut into pie-shaped wedges for easy serving.

Add crushed pineapple to French dressing. Serve over fruit salad. It gives added texture and flavor.

Chewy cookies are good munching for those who like to eat while they read. Suggested to go along with your next book are mincemeat drops, fig bars, soft molasses cookies, or big sugar cookies. These cookies are also excellent for coffee hour service.

Ground Meat Helps Solve Menu Task

Whenever that "what to serve today" question arises there is sure to be an appropriate answer from among the wide array of ground meat dishes. These are economical dishes, too, when the homemaker chooses the less demanded cuts of meat for grinding.

Among the thrifty cuts she suggests the beef neck, shank and chuck, pork shoulder, lamb and veal shanks, breast or neck. When ground these less tender cuts of meat produce savory baked loaves, broiled or pan-broiled patties or perfect braised or stewed dishes, as in the case of meat balls and meat sauces.

For variation, there are clever meat tarts. Greased muffin or tart tins are lined with seasoned ground meat, filled with creamed potatoes and baked. For a change about, ground meat is stuffed in fresh tomato, green pepper or onion cases and baked.

Meat balls en brochette are another unusual serving. Small beef or lamb balls are threaded on skewers alternating with tomato and onion slices. Before broiling they are brushed with melted butter or margarine, then placed on the rack about two inches from the heat and cooked until the meat is done, turning occasionally.

Still another different touch is cooking meat balls in onion sauce. Seasoned ground meat is combined with milk and shaped into balls. The balls are browned in a small amount of hot lard, a can of onion soup added and the combination allowed to cook slowly for about 20 minutes or until the meat balls are thoroughly done.

Bake Asparagus In Custard

A delicious way of serving canned asparagus is to bake it in a custard.

Asparagus Custard

1 No. 2 can asparagus
Milk
3 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Paprika

Drain the liquid from the asparagus and reduce, by boiling, to about a half cup. Add milk to make 1½ cups liquid. Beat eggs and add liquid, salt and pepper. Put asparagus in a shallow baking dish; add liquid and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) about 30 minutes until set. Six servings.

For winning main fare, melted butter or margarine followed by lemon juice is poured over tender veal chops just before serving.

Pork Sausage, Cornbread Ideal Harvest Dinner Dish

Your family will applaud this harvest dinner combination of zesty pork sausage links and hot cornbread squares for it's a natural in flavor appeal. Serve it with a flourish, for the "just right seasoning" of pure pork sausage adds savor to traditional hot bread favorites as waffles, pancakes and old-fashioned cornbread.

Pork sausage is available in popular pork sausage links, ready-shaped patties, or a roll of pork sausage meat, so choose the type that best fits your menu plans. And do use promptly. The flavor of fresh pork sausage is fleeting, so cook soon after purchase.

Here's an oven combination of sausage and cornbread that for all its good looks, bakes in a half hour.

To prepare, place pork sausage links in an open pan and bake in a hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Turn once to brown evenly and use care to avoid pricking the links.

Your favorite cornbread recipe or packaged mix bakes in approximately the same time and makes this a double-duty oven meal. Here's a tip your family might enjoy. To get a crisp, crunchy brown crust, use a heavy iron or cast aluminum pan and have it heated sizzling hot before greasing and pouring in the batter. This starts the batter baking immediately and develops a decided crustiness.

Because it is such a favorite, sausage brings smiles of approval when served for breakfast and luncheon, too. You can't beat the appetite appeal of sizzlin' sausage and pancakes, during cool fall weather. Harvest apples, sliced and poached in honey, or pureed with a dash of cinnamon add a tart flavor contrast.

Or serve Sausage Cornette for luncheon, soon. To make dip sausage patties into beaten egg, then roll in crushed cornflakes. Pan fry slowly and serve with tart fruit or heated peach halves.

For a variation on the sausage and cornbread theme, mix browned sausage meat and cornbread batter and bake together for a different flavor surprise.

SAUSAGE CORNBREAD
Yield: 6 servings

1 pound pork sausage meat
1½ cups cornmeal
½ cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 egg
1 cup sour milk

Slice and break up meat with a fork as it cooks. Brown thoroughly in heavy skillet (about 9 inches in diameter). Drain off drippings. Use 2 tablespoons for cornbread and save the rest for later cooking uses.

Sift together cornmeal, flour, salt, baking powder, and soda. Combine egg and milk and beat until well combined. Add 2 tablespoons cooked pork sausage drippings to milk and egg mixture. Pour liquid into dry ingredients and stir just until well mixed. Pour batter over pork sausage in heated skillet. Bake in hot oven (450°F.) about 30 to 35 minutes or until well browned. Turn out, upside down, on warm plate. Serve hot as main luncheon dish.

Deep Fat Fry Glamorizes Vegetables

Vegetables are quickly raised into the glamourizer class when deep-fat fried. Besides giving attractive appearance, the crisp coating gives added flavor to vegetables without losing any of their valuable vitamins.

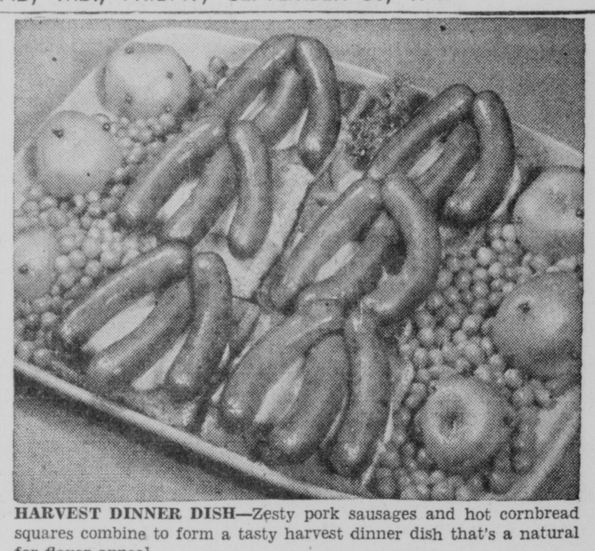

For deep-fat frying, sufficient lard to cover the food is melted in a kettle and heated to 360°F. temperature — never to the smoking point. At this correct temperature a one-inch cube of bread will brown in one minute.

Most vegetables are first cooked, then dipped in beaten egg and fine bread crumbs before deep frying. The egg may be diluted with either a small amount of milk or vegetable juice.

Irish and sweet potatoes alike are successfully fried. Cooked sweet potatoes turn into feathery puffs when mashed, seasoned and wrapped in marshmallow before frying.

Another on the favorite list is asparagus tips. They should be chilled in the refrigerator before dipping in the egg and crumb mixture. Onion rings are soaked in milk for a short time, then dipped in seasoned flour and fried. Other interesting deep fried vegetables include parsnip or carrot strips, cauliflower flowerets, green beans, egg plant slices and green pepper rings.

Breakfast or Sunday night pancakes become more delicious with bacon. Slowly panbroil bacon slices in a frying-pan, then pour pancake batter over them and bake as usual.

HARVEST DINNER DISH—Zesty pork sausages and hot cornbread squares combine to form a tasty harvest dinner dish that's a natural for flavor appeal.

ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

(By Representative J. Glenn Beall, Sixth Maryland District)

THE Department of Agriculture has announced that the decline in the price of farm land, which started in the West more than a year ago, has now moved across the entire country and predicts that land prices will continue downward for at least another year. Department officials contend, however, that the government price support program for farm products will prevent land values dropping as sharply or as far as they did following World War One.

Administration leaders have announced that the bill to repeal Federal taxes on oleomargarine will not be brought up for a vote in the Senate at this session of Congress. The reason — the certainty that riders will be attached to the measure to also repeal many of the war-time excise taxes which, when originally imposed, the people were promised would be eliminated within six months after the shooting stopped.

The Veterans Administration has announced the refunds which will be paid on government insurance carried during the war will be fifty-five cents a month for each one thousand dollars of insurance held by those then under forty years of age, with the rate dropping for the older veterans to as low as twenty cents per thousand dollars for those over fifty-five years of age when entering service. Maximum payment to any one veteran will be $528.00. For political purposes the Truman Administration is endeavoring to call these insurance payments "dividends," but actually they are simply refunds of the over-charges made on the insurance policies issued to those who served in the armed forces during the war.

American political, financial and business leaders are watching carefully the repercussions from the wide-spread devaluation of foreign currencies, which have followed Britain's announcement cutting the pound sterling from $4.03 to $2.80, and are endeavoring to foresee future effects. However, it is already being predicted that as a result of the devaluation of foreign currencies:

An election will soon be forced in Great Britain in which the Labor Party will probably lose control of the British government.

More foreign produced goods will soon be sold in the United States at lower prices, while less American commodities will be sold abroad at higher prices.

Shipments of grain and meat products from Canadian and South America farms will find ready markets in Europe, while exports of farm products from the United States, will drop sharply, and our farm surpluses will increase, with a depressing effect on farm prices.

More industrial activity and employment in Europe—less in United States. More American travel abroad and less foreign visitors to the United States.

British woolens, china, cutlery, and shoes, especially, are expected to flood American stores within a few months. Probably more British automobiles will also be sold in the United States.

More people from the United States than ever before will vacation in Canada, where nine American dollars will buy ten Canadian dollars.

Pressure on the United States to devalue our currency by increasing the price of gold above the present $35.00 an ounce will grow steadily stronger.

UNDER THE DOME

I went over the George's Creek section of Allegany County with Representatives of the Corps of Engineers and the County Commissioners. I had introduced legislation asking for a survey of George's Creek to work out flood control measures. The flood control problem in the George's Creek region is most important. I am glad the Engineers went over the region and sincerely hope that effective measures will be taken to help relieve the situation.

The Board of Veterans Appeals advised me that an appeal case on which I appeared personally before the Board was allowed. The case in question involved the establishment of service connection. I knew the case to be a most worthy one and I was glad that the Board members saw fit to allow the appeal.

We are receiving many inquiries relative to the minimum wage legislation. Many people are of the opinion that the legislation is now a law. At the present time the bill is before Senate and House conferees and final action has not been taken. Until that is done the law remains as it is. Just as soon as the legislation becomes a law we will be glad to send copies of the new law to any one interested in obtaining one.

Last week I spent two days in Hagerstown where I met with various individuals and groups to discuss their problems and pending legislation.

Lake Gordon Camp Area To Be Restored

The ten-acre recreation area at Lake Gordon will be rehabilitated, according to George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company. Hitchcock said plans are already underway.

The camping and recreation area, about nine miles from Cumberland was a popular camping, fishing and picnic spot several years ago, but has become unsightly in the past few years.

Hitchcock said the wartime manpower shortage was partly responsible for the present situation. "Moonlight parties" from Cumberland, he declared, damaged bathhouses at the swimming pool and strewed bottles and rubbish on the grounds.

Edmund F. Hoey, city recreation director, looked over the grounds recently, but since the area is in Pennsylvania, City Recreation Department funds cannot be used to restore it.

Hitchcock said, however, that the city-controlled Evitts Creek Water Company, which operates the city's water supply from Lake Gordon and Lake Koon, can use its funds to repair the place.

Plans call for enclosure of the camping area with a fence. All campers would be required to obtain a key at the main gate. "Moonlight parties" could then be avoided, Hitchcock said.

Fishermen, he said, have also been responsible for littering the shores of the lakes with refuse. At one time this summer, he added, Pennsylvania authorities were considering closing the lakes to fishing.

Hitchcock asserted that the spot is a natural recreation area and with little expenditure can be made a beauty spot.

Drivers Escape Injury In Crash

Two drivers escaped injury when a car driven by Samuel Drubeck, 56, of 407 Pulaski Street, collided with a tractor-trailer truck at Virginia Avenue and Second Street Wednesday.

Police said the truck driver was Coolidge C. Carden, 24, USN, Norfolk, Va. No charges were preferred.

STANDING IN FRONT OF THE CONVERTED SCHOOL BUS in which they plan to make a trip from their home in Troy, N. Y., to Los Angeles, Calif., are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bayly and their 14 children. Harry's parents, not shown here, will also join the Baylys on their transcontinental tour by way of Cleveland, Cincinnati and Oklahoma City. The children, whose first names all begin with "B," range in ages from one to 18. A field kitchen is going along as well as a 16-foot tent in which the family will sleep. (International Soundphoto)

This year and next year, more of us, perhaps many more of us, will go broke individually than in the years just past. Because, in the first place, there are more of us. But, more important, customers are back in the saddle where they belong, and they are again making distinctions between horses, jackasses and mules.—Beardsley Ruml, author of the "pay-as-you-go" tax plan.

An inch of rainfall on an acre weighs about 100 tons.

Economic recovery will lag if the haunting fear of military aggression is widespread. Such fear will prevent new investments from being made and new industries from being established.

—President Truman.

—by Billy Rose

I RECENTLY READ a magazine piece entitled, "What's Wrong with Modern Marriage," in which the author opined that the divorce rate would drop like an over-ripe apple if the average wife showed more interest in her husband's business and hobbies.

Well, mabbe so, but you can't prove it by my Uncle Charlie and my Aunt Frieda . . . .

Billy Rose

Charlie and Frieda are a couple of oldsters who have been living in a four-room flat on the East Side almost as long as magazines have been printing articles entitled, "What's Wrong with Modern Marriage." Ever since their nuptials, they've had at least one argument a day, and when they stop scrapping that's when I'll start worrying about them.

I remember an evening back in the days when I was knee-high to the Allen Street curbstone when Aunt Frieda came home from the movies with an air of unwavering mobility.

"Charlie," she said tensely, "how is business at the shop, good, bad or fair to the middle"

"Eh-peh," answered my uncle.

("Eh-peh," I hasten to translate, means that things being what they are, if a man breaks even he can consider himself a runaway success.)

"'Eh-peh' is no answer," said Frieda. "I am sick of living in a doll's house."

"I see," said Charlie. "Tonight in the nickelodeon was showing Nazimova in 'A Doll's House' by Hymie Ibsen."

"Ibsen, Shmibsen," said Frieda. "You can't push me out of your life. Confide in me everything, come thick or thin."

"This I'll confide," said Charlie. "When I come home from the shop I'm tired out like a dog. Bad enough to live through the day without it should repeat on me like radishes."

• — • — •

However, with my Aunt Frieda, like Columbus, there was no turning back. She kept picking away until Charlie itemized the day's doings—everything from punch-in to punch-out.

But that was only the beginning. The payoff came a few weeks later when Charlie was fixing to attend his weekly pinochle session.

"I want you should teach me how to play," said Frieda.

"Pinochle!" said Charlie. "Always you are saying pinochle is for loafers and no-goods."

"I ain't saying different," said Frieda, "but pinochle is your passion and I don't want it should take my place in your life."

Now, my uncle was a broad-minded man. When women began to bob their hair, his comment was, "They want to ventilate their necks, so let them." But pinochle—well, that was another mater. Nevertheless, he knew better than to balk his wife outright and, as he explained the game to Frieda, all the while thinking bitterly of the coffeehouse session he was missing, a plot began to hatch in his head.

Next evening he was home early with a bag of wool and knitting needles. "Frieda," he said, "how you make a cable stitch?"

Half an hour later he was in the kitchen tasting the soup. "It needs a pinch paprika," he said.

"You're giving me point-outs how to make soup?"

"Who's teaching? A woman cooks and shops, a husband should similar cook and shop. How much you pay for cabbage?"

"Five cents a head."

"At Fuzarri's on Avenue A, is four cents."

Frieda dropped a handful of cutlery in the sink. "Fuzarri's is six blocks away."

"So what? The exercise will do you good."

• — • — •

That Saturday night, Charlie persuaded a couple of his cronies to come over for a pinochle session and put up with his wife's playing. At 12 o'clock Frieda said, "I can't keep my eyes apart. Maybe you could play three-handed."

"What kind pinochle player stops so early?" said Charlie. "Deal!" And at 3 a. m., Frieda was dealing them as if they were bricks.

Sunday, Charlie put on his best tie. "Today I go with you to see Theda Bara," he said.

"Is not necessary to go with," said Frieda. "I got a date with the ladies."

"Where you go, I go," said Charlie.

Frieda, afraid Charlie would laugh at Theda's amatory exercises and humiliate her in front of her friends, pulled down the flag.

"Marriage is not simple a ball and chain," she said. "You go your way and I'll go to Loew's."

Charlie moved in for the kill.

"No more schmoose about the shop?"

"If no more cable stitches."

"No more pinochle?"

"If no more tasting the soup."

"You got an agreement," said my uncle.

And they've been fighting happily ever since.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A new clerk at the Twentieth Cenutry-Fox studio in Beverly Hills was standing in front of the Administration Building when he saw a driverless Cadillac rolling down the incline to the entrance on Pico Boulevard. He raced across the lawn, jumped into the moving car, and jammed on the emergency brake.

At this point, Darryl Zanuck, king bee of the studio, appeared from behind the car. "Gee, Mr. Zanuck," boasted the clerk, "this Cadillac was running down the hill and I stopped it." "Yes, I know," said Mr. Zanuck grimly, "I was pushing it."

A citizen of Santa Monica, arrested for attempting suicide, was asked what had driven him to such straits. "It was an ad in the paper," he confessed. "An undertaker offered a five-hundred-dollar funeral for sixty-eight-fifty. How could I pass up a bargain like that?"

Japan Is Tourist-Hungry; Getting Them Is Problem

By O. H. P. KING

TOKYO, Sept. 29. (AP)—Japan is quaint, scenic and tourist-hungry.

Tourism used to be big business here, in prewar days. Japanese are acutely aware they are only a frog-hop away from a continent full of natural-born tourists. The problem is how to get them across the pond. wage and pensions problems.

When the fifth transoceanic air line service (Canadian Pacific) opened through Tokyo recently, Chamber of Commerce officials hoped to tap a hitherto uncultivated source of potential spendthrift travelers.

Before the war no chartered airlines paused in Japan. But the tourist business was significant, even after tension cut it down. In 1935 customs records show 42,629 foreigners visited Japan.

Although the total had sagged to 32,051 by 1939, it still meant a valuable flow of hard-currency revenue to the islands.

Now, since the war, half a dozen airlines send planes in and out of Tokyo weekly. Yet travel is the lightest, except for war years, in the memory of career greets like hotel managers.

Steamship companies are offering attractive tours for those with leisure. The airlines make it possible for those with more money than time to see far away places and still get home quickly.

Canadian Pacific Air Lines, a subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific Railway, started service recently between Vancouver, B. C., and Hong Kong. Other lines operating through Tokyo are British Overseas Airways Corporation with weekly round trips between here and London; China National Aviation Corporation with weekly flights to Hong Kong; Philippine Airlines making weekly flights to Manila; Northwest Airlines with three weekly flights; and Pan-American World Airways, also with three flights weekly from the United States.

Real tourist business may be months away from any appreciable volume — in fact it may not amount to much until after a peace treaty is signed — but when it does the Japanese expect visitors from all over.

At the peak of her popularity, 1935, Japan was host to 9,111 Americans, 7,290 British, 1,280 Russians, and 260 Chinese — to mention only the leaders.

There were only 375 from Canada but if Canadian Pacific Airlines gets the business it counts on, Japan will realize a tidy income from this source.

Relaxed regulations have recently been announced by Supreme Headquarters as another step toward eventual withdrawal of occupation forces.

In the years ahead, this land of 80 million people who fought so fanatically against now-friendly victors may again be one of the world's favored vacation spots.

It has the scenery — and the ambition.

It Says Here

Sophisticated hillbilly songs.

Yes, sir, the latest trend in popular music is duets between sophisticated songstresses and cowboy singers. They've just teamed up Margaret Whiting with Jimmy Wakely and Dinah Shore with Ray Morgan.

I can see why these western boys would want to team up with Dinah and Maggie. But then, that goes for the north, east and south, too.

Of course, there is one thing about teaming a sophisticated gal with a cowboy singer. Every time you get into a romantic mood, the horse steps in the way.

As soon as I heard about it, I tried to get Doris Day to make a sophisticated western record with me, but she had one objection. She said it wouldn't work because she couldn't get her voice down low enough to sound like a cowboy.

Naturally, this trend is going to cause a change on the range. At sundown the cowpuncher will start strumming his guitar . . . then a dogie wearing a strapless evening gown will slink over, hand him her music, and go into "St. Louis Moos."

In "People's Democracy," Worker Gets Girl But After Work Is Done

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

RAGUE, Sept. 29, (AP)—In the new Czechoslovak "peoples democracy," it's the worker who wins the fair lady and not the tall, sleek chap with the golden voice.

The weekly "Eveten" made this plain in printing what it said was a true story about romance and love in the work brigades.

These work brigades are composed of "volunteer youth" who labor in the woods and fields, or on state building projects.

It seems, according to "Eveten," that "Mana" was the prettiest girl in the lumber brigade.

"Red" was a sturdy little fellow who worked hard. He played the guitar well around the night camp fires, but his attempts at singing left much to be desired.

"Jan" was tall and charming, with a melodious golden voice—"the kind of a fellow nobody would want dancing with his wife."

While Red was out tirelessly felling trees, setting all kinds of production records, Jan was hanging around Mana, early and late.

One morning, "Eveten" related, Jan the charmer was cooking cocoa with Mana for breakfast in her tent. But Red was already out early, felling another tree before breakfast.

As the tree toppled Red shouted a warning, but it landed partly on Mana's tent, spilling her cocoa.

"I'm sorry," said Red.

"No, don't feel badly," replied Mana. "The cocoa doesn't matter. What does matter is work. I want to go out chopping trees with you. Teach me and I won't disappoint you."

"But what about him—Jan?"

"Oh, him!" said Mana with a grimace.

"Mana," Red murmured, coming closer.

"No, not yet," Mana said firmly. "That can wait. We are here on a working brigade—not in a holiday camp. Wait until I get my medal for work and then we can talk about the future."

"That's just what I was thinking," said Red happily. "Well, here's your ax. Let's go."

It is a most extraordinary thing that lawyers for defendants in a criminal case and their witnesses shall persistently and deliberately decide what questions they will answer and what questions they won't, and then further have the effrontery—at least one of them did—to say that was the traditional policy of workers and labor. I am pretty sure that statement is resented by a good many working people in the United States.
—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, in the trial of Communist leaders.

Girl On Roof Takes Over Dad's Chimney Sweep Job

AP Newsfeatures

BUDAPEST — Piroska Miklos is Budapest's 28 - year - old woman chimney sweep. She backs an old tradition and helps a new trend all on the same job.

The old tradition comes from her family which has provided sweeps for the city for generations. She takes over the business from her father. The new trend is for Hungarian women to do work formerly limited to men.

Miss Miklos says women are now on the police force. They are bus conductors and customs officers in uniform. Why not chimney sweeps? she asks.

She rides to work on a motorbike and finds scrambling over rooftops is fun. Many people of the city are superstitious. They think chimney sweeps bring luck. Some of them will try to take a feather from her broom or a button from her dress.

IT'S A SCRAMBLE to get there sometimes but it's fun.

Crippled Watchmaker Unwittingly Helped Fashion "Love-Plot" Bomb

QUEBEC, Sept. 29 (AP)—A high city police official said today that a half-paralyzed watchmaker who was a wizard with his hands unwittingly helped to make the bomb that sent 23 airliner passengers to their death September 9.

He was identified by the officials, who preferred to remain anonymous, as 47-year-old Genereux Ruest. He is a brother to Mrs. Arthur Pitre, a key witness in the case.

Paralyzed from the waist down but said to be an expert watchmaker the grey-eyed Ruest will not be charged in connection with the "love-plot" bomb, the official said.

The official said Ruest will be a crown witness in the trial against J. Albert Guay, charged with murdering his pretty 28-year-old wife, Rita, a passenger on the plane.

The official said Ruest who learned to work for hours on tiny and complicated devices while he spent years in an invalid's bed, did not know what he was making the time mechanism for.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Pitre, the key crown witness in the alleged murder-in-the-sky plot, and a friend of the accused Guay, was arraigned in court yesterday on a charge of attempted suicide. Her preliminary hearing was set for October 6.

Police described Mrs. Pitre as the "other woman" in Guay's triangle. Guay is accused of blowing up the plane to murder his wife so that he could collect $10,000 insurance and be free to marry again.

Lt. Col. Leon Lambet, director of Quebec District Provincial Police, said Mrs. Pitre bought the 20 sticks of dynamite used in the time bomb. He declared she insisted she thought it was to be used to blast tree stumps on a farm.

Police declined to say what Ruest, Mrs. Pitre's brother, thought he was making when he unwittingly helped fashion the time bomb mechanism.

The case broke after Mrs. Pitre took an overdose of sleeping tablets that left her unconscious for three days. When she woke up on September 23 police questioned her and Guay's arrest followed a few hours later.

Mrs. Pitre was said to have admitted to Royal Canadian Mounted Police that she had carried a parcel to the plane just before it took off on its fatal flight. She told police she thought the parcel contained a statue.

Police also reported they were questioning about 20 other people as prospective witnesses in the Guay Trial. His preliminary hearing is set for October 4.

Why Do They Want to Put A&P Out of Business?

The answer is to be found in the formal complaint "they" have filed with the court.

By "they" we mean, of course, the anti-trust lawyers from Washington who are out to destroy A&P.

They say . . . and these are the anti-trust lawyers' own words . . . that we "have regularly undersold competing retailers."

To this charge we plead guilty:

We confess that for the past 90 years we have constantly stepped up the efficiency of our operations in order to give our customers more and more good food for their money.

The American people have seen nothing wrong in this. By their ever-increasing patronage for 90 years they have shown that they like this low-price policy.

Apparently the people still see nothing wrong in this today. All during the past week – since the anti-trust lawyers made their charges – we have been deluged with phone calls and letters from men and women in all walks of life who want us to know they are opposed to this effort to put A&P out of business.

An enormous number of customers are telling our store managers and clerks that they want to continue to enjoy our low prices for quality foods.

Farmers and other suppliers are asking what they can do to preserve this efficient outlet for their products.

Our 110,000 employees are asking us to protect their jobs and pensions.

Labor leaders are wiring us their opposition to this threat to labor's living standards.

If all these people will be hurt, why then do the anti-trust lawyers want to put A&P out of business?

Low Prices Don't Hurt Anyone

The anti-trust lawyers say because we are able to sell food cheaper than other grocers, we make it impossible for those grocers to compete with us.

If this were true, we should have all the food business in the United States by this time.

Just the opposite is true. In 1933 we had 11.6 per cent of the nation's food business. Now, according to the anti-trust lawyers, our share has decreased to 6.4 per cent in 1948. Anyone can see we have nothing even approaching a monopoly.

As a matter of fact, there are about 30,000 more individual grocers in business today than there were ten years ago.

There are about 275 more food chains in business today than there were ten years ago.

In other words, we have more competitors in the food field and do a smaller share of the nation's food business than before.

Where is this alleged destruction of other grocers? Where is there any evidence of their inability to compete with us?

Do You Want Higher Prices?

As anyone can see, the only purpose that would be served by putting A&P out of business would be to raise food prices.

Who would this benefit?

We were the first merchants to set the pattern for low-cost, low-profit distribution. Our example and our competition has led other grocers to keep their prices down.

Remove A&P from the picture and food prices are bound to go up.

Remove A&P from the picture and the way will be cleared for the destruction of every other efficient large-scale distributor.

Is this what the American people want?

THE GREAT ATLANTIC & A&P PACIFIC TEA COMPANY

tion that he refused to go to the aid of two truckers for the W. W. Coal Company August 11.

Wednesday, Wayne Brashear, who with his father operates the mine, said Lewis, who was at the rectory of St. James Episcopal Church, had refused to aid.

Lewis said he and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle were at the rectory when Westernport Police Officer Burza Hanlin informed them 10 carloads of pickets were chasing two coal trucks from the Brashear mine, and had threatened to upset the trucks.

Lewis said he and Boyle immediately interrupted their other investigation and started out in pursuit of the pickets. They failed to overtake any known pickets or coal trucks until they reached Cresaptown, he added, where they saw two parked trucks. The drivers, he declared, were sitting on the running boards eating their lunches.

Commenting on another statement by James Moran concerning an incident Friday, Muir said Moran called him after he heard pickets were coming to the mine from West Virginia.

Moran had charged that seven carloads of pickets arrived shortly after Muir and Chappell left. Moran also said he had informed the officers he was unarmed.

Muir said at least two and a half hours elapsed between the time he and Chappell left and the time the pickets arrived. "We've spent more than one whole day chasing over the county after someone had heard pickets were coming in," he said.

"Agitating Trouble"

The sheriff added that he believes mine owners "agitate trouble by the display of firearms" when pickets visit their operations.

He declared attaches of his office have been steadily patrolling the county in case of any trouble since the mine strike began.

Muir reported he has told mine owners they should quit work "because we can't have a man on every truck."

There were no further reports of violence of picket activity yesterday from area mine owners.

However, one UMW official commented, concerning Brashear's fears that "someone will be killed:"

"The most danger of anyone getting killed at Brashear's mines is in his pits where several men have been killed in accidents."

He also declared that accident incidence at Brashear's workings is high, and said there are not more than 30 miners working in the mines affected by the visits. There are 2,500 miners in the county, he added.

The UMW spokesman said the production total at these mines is a "drop in the bucket" compared to the overall output of union and other unorganized mines.

Creek Trio Jailed

Two Lonaconing men and a Midland man were committed to County Jail at hearings yesterday before Magistrate Edward J. McPartland at Lonaconing.

Raymond Gallagher, drew 30 days for carrying an open clasp knife, and 15 days for drunk and disorderly conduct. James Spiker, also of Lonaconing, drew a 30-day sentence for drunk and disorderly conduct, and Marshall Yeider, Midland, was sentenced to 25 days for drunk and disorderly conduct.

Hit-Run Driver Strikes Machine

KEYSER, W. Va. — A unidentified motorist drove his sedan through a red light at the corner of Main and Armstrong Streets about 9:30 Wednesday night, and continued on after striking another car at the intersection, according to police.

Daken C. Morehouse, 81 Orchard Street, who was driving east on Armstrong Street, was crossing Main Street on the green light, when the other car struck his machine, forcing it to the curb.

While the collision was witnessed by a number of persons, there was none who could give the license number of the car. The car dropped a hub cap after the crash. City Police Officers Raymond "Abe" Dawson and Paul Howdyshell were on the scene within a minute following the accident and gave chase, but without success.

Morehouse was uninjured and his car only slightly damaged.

Railway Bridge Will Be Used

WESTERNPORT—Pemission has been given by the Western Maryland Railway Company to the Town of Westernport for pedestrians to use their foot bridge near Main Street while a new bridge over George's Creek at Washington Street is being constructed by the State of Maryland.

The town has already placed electric lights on the bridge and along the route through the yard of Carl Fields which pedestrians will use to get to Front Street.

Workmen of the Maryland State Roads Commission will begin laying a four-foot wide gravel walk in the Field yard and steps for foot traffic.

After the work on the new bridge is completed the state will remove the gravel walk and the town will lay a concrete walk 100 feet long and two and a half feet wide in the Fields yard. This is for Fields permitting pedestrians to pass through their yard during construction of the bridge.

Church Desires "Ability To Live," Communists Told

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP) — The editor of the Vatican newspaper says the Catholic Church's minimum requirements for peace with Communism are those which guarantee to the church "the ability to live."

Count Giuseppe Dalla Torre, editor-in-chief of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano, discussed Catholic-Communist relations in an article published today in the magazine United Nations World. The magazine has no official connection with the United Nations.

Count Dalla Torre, for the past 30 years the confidant of popes and cardinals, wrote:

"The Catholic Church has never accepted and cannot accept the subordination to the state of religion and of human conscience. The church thinks that collaboration between the religious and secular powers is the most just and the most beneficial system, because Christianity is not only a religion but also a civilization, and religion in itself is not exclusively an individual but also a social phenomenon. But if there must be a separation between temporal and spiritual authority, the reciprocal independence and freedom of the state and of the church must not inhibit or limit the practical cooperation of the church for the common good."

The initiative for the conflict between the Vatican and the Kremlin did not come from the Catholic Church, Count Dalla Torre said. He added:

"When Communism arrived, the church was holding its traditional place in world affairs. The trouble began when the church found that it had to defend itself against Communist onslaughts."

He said the "Catholic Church asks from the Communist countries neither more nor less than it asks from other countries where separation between church and state exist." This means, he continued, that the following five privileges should be legally established and respected:

"2. Freedom of evangelization and of proselytism (seeking new converts).

"3. Freedom of religious administration: The right of the church to nominate priests and bishops; to maintain communication among the faithful and the priests, the priests and the hierarchy, the hierarchy and the Holy See.

"4. Freedom of religious instruction and of the Christian school.

"5. Freedom of the means of dissemination of the faith, of defense, and of affirmation of the thought and the mission of Catholicism before public opinion — in short, freedom of Catholic speech, press and action."

Roy Pays Fines

Carl John Roy, 34, Ridgeley, was released from County Jail yesterday on payment of fines totaling $246.50 on three state motor charges.

Roy drew a third sentence of 20 days yesterday morning in a Trial Magistrates Court hearing after he had been convicted on the other two charges while using names other than his own.

He was committed for 25 days in default of a $25.75 fine, and received a 90-day sentence for refusing to return a hired car. Roy received both sentences in the name of Cook.

County Teachers To Attend Meet

Dr. Andrew D. Holt, president of the National Education Association, will give the keynote address on "Making Our Professional Organizations Tick" Saturday morning. A panel discussion will follow.

Area educators who will attend include J. Stanley Hunter, Beall High School, and president of the Allegany County Teachers Association; Miss Anne Tennant, principal of Gephart School, secretary of the local association; Arthur W. Taylor, principal of Beall High School; Earl F. Brain, principal of Beall Elementary School; John E. Grindle, Bruce High School, Westernport; Miss Margaret Doak, of East Side School, and Miss Margaret V. King, of Pennsylvania Avenue School.

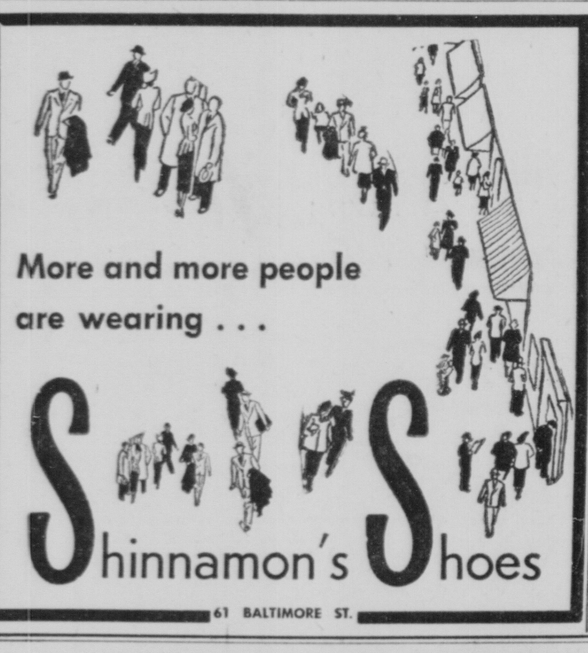

The session has been scheduled to give additional training to leaders of professional organizations in local, state and national levels.

Dodgers Cop Lead As Pirates Trip Cards

Braves Drop Double Bill To Brooklyn

Furillo And Snider Belt 3-Run Homers In 9-2 And 8-0 Wins

By TED SMITS

BOSTON, Sept. 29 (AP) — The dauntless Brooklyn Dodgers squeezed past the St. Louis Cardinals into first place in the home stretch of the fierce National race today by defeating the Boston Braves 9-2 and 8-0.

Coupled with Pittsburgh's second successive defeat of the Cardinals, the Dodgers now lead by half a game, with two to play, both at Philadelphia. The Cards have three games left, all with the Chicago Cubs.

The second game of the damp-gray double-header was played in a drizzle and ended after five innings in semi-darkness amid much comic horse-play by the Braves.

Roe And Newcombe Win

Superlative pitching by Preacher Roe and Don Newcombe plus plenty of hefty hitting, including three-run homers by Carl Furillo and Duke Snider, accomplished what looked last Sunday like the impossible. Then it was the Phillies beat the Dodgers 5-3 and sent them a game and a half behind the Cardinals.

Although neither game was a real contest, no one can say the Braves didn't try. They started their two pitching aces, Warren Spahn and John Sain, and the Dodgers promptly knocked them out of the box.

So wet, dismal and gloomy were the proceedings that boos were frequent in the second game at the ineptness and apparent stalling tactics of the Braves.

When the umpires conferred with Manager Burt Shotton of the Dodgers, a roar went up.

Ryan Wears Raincoat

Although the Dodgers and the Braves have an open date tomorrow, Shotton didn't want to lose the fat lead his sluggers built up.

In the last of the fifth inning of the second game, when Connie Ryan of the Braves tried to come into the batters' circle wearing a big, black raincoat, the umpires didn't think it was funny and threw him out of the game.

Then the Braves lit a fire at the edge of their dug-out presumably to guide their batters back. The crowd, that cheered the Braves to the pennant last year, was raucus and cynical.

Trainer Suspended. Used Oil Of Mustard To Stimulate Horse

LAUREL, Md., Sept. 29 (AP) — Shirley M. Ball was suspended indefinitely today by the Laurel stewards for allegedly stimulating his horse with mustard.

Joseph M. Flanagan, steward, announced the 9-year-old horse had oil of mustard injected in his rectum. The steward said Ball was suspended pending a hearing before the Maryland Racing Commission.

Brooke Argo is a veteran half-mile track campaigner, having won six out of 21 starts to earn $3,400 this year. He went to the post at odds of 18-1 here yesterday.

Flanagan said receiving barn guards became suspicious of the unusual high position of Brooke Argo's tail on the way to the paddock. A chemical test after the race showed the presence of oil of mustard, the steward said.

Cards, Dodgers To Play Series In Case Of Tie

Opener Set For Oct. 4, Would Delay Classic

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP) — If the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers should end the National League baseball season in a tie, it will require a three-game playoff and a consequent postponement of the world series.

If the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees remain deadlocked for the American League championship, they'll settle it in a single game at Boston next Monday and the series can start on schedule.

National League rules call for a two-of-three set in case of a deadlock and a coin-tossing ceremony today in the office of President Ford Frick determined that it will start in St. Louis on Tuesday, Oct. 4. A similar toss in the Chicago headquarters of President William Harridge decided the site of the possible American League playoff.

Since a full day is required for travel between Brooklyn and St. Louis, the National League dates were set as follows: first game at St. Louis, Oct. 4; second game and third, if necessary, at Brooklyn Thursday, Oct. 6 and Friday, Oct. 7.

John Collins, Brooklyn business manager, chose to open in St. Louis and play the odd game in the Dodger park after Fred Saigh, Cardinal president, had failed to call the flip of the coin. Joe Cronin, Red Sox general manager, called the toss and picked the Boston park as the site of the one game. Both ceremonies were conducted over long-distance telephone hookups with newspapermen as witnesses.

The world series is scheduled to start in the home park of the American League champion on Wednesday, Oct. 5. If a three-game playoff is required in the National League, it could not start before the following Saturday, Oct. 8, and the teams probably would be granted an extra day of rest with the start on Sunday. The decision on the dates would be in the hands of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Torrid A. L. Race To Resume Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP) — The torrid American league pennant battle, cooled off by rain today, will resume tomorrow, weather permitting.

The Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees, tied for the lead, had their games rained out today. The Yanks were scheduled to meet the Philadelphia Athletics at the Yankee Stadium and the Red Sox were to play the last place Senators in Washington.

According to weather forecasts, it will be fair and cool in Washington and partly cloudy in New York tomorrow.

Should rain again intervene and cause postponement of the afternoon games, the contenders will reschedule the games for the evening. In that event, should the night games be rained out, the games will be cancelled. The Yanks and Red Sox open a two game series in New York Saturday, next to the last day of the regular season.

Eddie Lopat (15-9) has been selected to pitch for the Yanks against Dick Fowler (14-11) of the A's. Fowler started and lost Tuesday's opening game of the series against the Yanks.

The A's originally had planned on using Phil Marchildon (0-3) but a flood of critical telegrams and fan letters caused acting Manager Earl Mack to switch to Fowler.

Manager Connie Mack, back in Philadelphia because of an upset stomach, had planned to use Marchildon, troubled with a sore arm all year because he had used him against Boston on Sept. 2.

The Red Sox knocked Marchildon out with five runs in the first inning and Mack, in order to avert claims of favoritism, said he would start Marchildon in one of the games against the Yanks.

At Washington Jack Kramer (6-8) will go against former Red Sox, Lefty Mickey Harris (4-14). The Sox are out for blood following Washington's upset 2-1 victory Wednesday night.

Roy Evans Posts 8-1 Record To Lead Interstate Hurlers

Al Swick Of Romney Rockets Is Strikeout King With 121 Victims; Bedford's Felty Walked 43

Roy Evans of the Hyndman Veterans of Foreign Wars paced the pitchers in the Interstate Baseball League for the 1949 season with a record of eight wins and one loss, according to the official averages released yesterday by Bob Whip, league secretary.

Al Swick of the Romney Rockets, who won more games than any pitcher in the circuit, a total of nine, was the league's strikeout king for the second straight year with 121 victims in twelve games, an average of 10 per game.

Deremer pitched the greatest number of innings, a total of 118. The averages:

Terps And Hoyes To Meet Tonight

18,000 Are Expected To See Grid Battle

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 29 (AP)—A football battle royal is in the making for Friday night (8:15 p. m.) between Maryland and Georgetown.

The Hoyas from Washington didn't figure in pre-season calculations to provide too stern a test for the Old Liners. On top of everything, they were coming out under a new, young coach, Bob Margarita.

But things changed rapidly last week. Georgetown opened by scoring a 20-13 upset victory over well regarded Holy Cross to take on sudden respect.

This puts a different light on tomorrow's game. Maryland still rules a slight favorite but if Georgetown is as good as that Holy Cross triumph indicates it should be a close game. That is, unless Maryland is much better and farther advanced than expected.

The Old Liners showed they had plenty of latent power in tromping on Virginia Tech 34-7 in their inaugural last Saturday. Fumbles and penalties kept the score from being higher.

All 18,000 seats in the Byrd Stadium are expected to be filled for the clash between the area rivals.

Andy Kerr's Team Will Test Mounts

EMMITSBURG, Md., Sept. 29 (AP) — Mount St. Mary's College is going to be back to the football earth or higher in the clouds after Friday night.

Lebanon Valley will provide the first real test for the hopeful Mountaineers tomorrow night in Harrisburg. If the Mountaineers sail through that one they'll certainly bear watching.

Lebanon Valley is coached by the canny Andy Kerr of razzle dazzle Colgate fame. Since he came to the Pennsylvania college three years ago the Valley team has become very respected in small gridiron circles.

Lebanon Valley, known as the Flying Dutchmen, will offer a good comparison of the Mount's aspirations. Last year they whitewashed Coach John Law's eleven, 25-0.

Ed Dudley Loses

LEEDS, England, Sept. 29 (AP) — Ed Dudley of Augusta, Ga., honorary captain of the American Ryder Cup team, was defeated today in the first round of the Daily Telegraph pro-amateur golf tournament.

Dudley and amateur Alan Turner of Leeds lost 4 and 3 to Donald Cameron of Scotland and John Burton, a brother of British Ryder Cup player Dick Burton.

Dudley was the only American entrant. Seven of the Ryder Cup team were scheduled to play but all withdrew to go home.

Freak Homer Helps Tribe Beat Chisox

CHICAGO, Sept. 29 (AP) — A freak home run by third baseman Bob Kennedy helped the Cleveland Indians beat the Chicago White Sox, 8-3, today as the winners pulled within a game of third place Detroit in American League standings.

Kennedy's sixth inning liner with two men on base rolled into a hole under a bench in the Chicago bullpen at the foot of left field foul line for a homer. Box:

Washington Capitols Get Halbert, Reiser

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Washington Capitols have added Chick Halbert from Boston and Chick Reiser from Baltimore to their roster for the pro basketball season.

Reiser, a basketball veteran, was signed last night after getting his release from the Baltimore Bullets. He had been unable to come to salary terms with his old team.

Halbert, six feet nine inches in height, was obtained in a straight player swap with the Boston Celtics. In exchange the Celtics got six-foot, two-inch Sonny Hertzberg. Coach Bob Feerick said no cash was involved.

Jack Faces Minelli

CHICAGO, Sept. 29 (AP)—Former world lightweight champion Beau Jack, winner in 15 of 17 bouts in a "comeback" campaign, will give away 10 pounds to Italy's Livio Minelli in their Chicago Stadium bout tomorrow night.

Jack will weigh approximately 136 pounds and the 24-year-old Minelli 146 for their 10-round mix. Minelli is a second substitute for the bout in which Jack originally was booked to fight Kid Gavilan of Cuba.

Thomas Gridders Top Lumberport

Gennantonio Scores Twice In 20-7 Win

THOMAS, W. Va., Sept. 29 — Thomas High School's football team scored its second victory of the season today by downing Lumberport High School of Harrison county on the local field by the score of 20 to 7.

Coach Emil Suder's gridders scored touchdowns in the first, second and third periods and the visitors tallied in the third stanza.

Danny Gennantonio accounted for two of Thomas's scores. He climaxed a 60-yard march in the first period with an end run from the 10-yard mark and in the third quarter he smashed over from the two after the locals had driven from midfield. Dale Cross accounted for the second score, reaching paydirt on a smash from the 1-yard line in the second period. Dave Stemple added the extra points after the first and third touchdowns, the first on an end run and the second on a plunge.

Dickson Turns Back St. Louis To Tune Of 7-2

4-Run Rally In 6th Decides; Westlake Clouts 23rd Homer

By JOE REICHLER

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 29 (AP) — Little Murry Dickson, who helped pitch the St. Louis Cardinals into the world series in 1946, may have knocked them out of it this year.

Dickson pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-2 victory over his former mates today and it knocked them out of first place in the National League. The Brooklyn Dodgers took over the top rung by sweeping a doubleheader from the Braves in Boston, 9-2 and 8-0.

A rousing four-run Pirate outburst against starter Gerald Staley and Howie Pollet in the sixth inning helped seal St. Louis' doom, and paved the way for Dickson's fifth triumph of the year over the flighty Redbirds.

The big blow of the frame was delivered by Monte Basgall, a former Dodger farmhand. The sophomore second baseman slammed relief pitcher Pollet's first pitch into the right field corner to send the second and third runs of the inning over the plate. When Red Schoendienst threw past the plate, Basgall raced home with the fourth run.

A walk to Ralph Kiner and singles by Wally Westlake and Pete Castiglione had routed Staley, but put the Bucs in front, 2-1, and brought Pollet to the scene.

The pestiferous Pirates, just to make certain they would become the only team to capture the season's series from the Cards, added two insurance runs off Ted Wilks in the eighth when, following a walk to Johnny Hopp, Wally Westlake walloped his 23rd home run over the scoreboard in left.

Sentinels Seek 3rd Win Over Washington Eleven

Two PVC Tilts Listed, Westmont At Bedford

Calvin Coolidge High School's Colts, representing the youngest school in the District of Columbia, will provide the opposition for Fort Hill High School's football team, as Coach William P. Hahn's Sentinels seek their third victory of the 1949 campaign tonight at 8 o'clock at the local stadium.

Calvin Coolidge High School, named after the former president, was opened in 1940. Over the past eight years teams from that school have captured district titles in football, twice; basketball, twice; baseball, three times; tennis and golf, four times each and finished as runner-up in several championship races.

Coach Gil Coan is a graduate of East Prairie High School, Missouri, and George Washington University, Washington. His assistants are Gil Roberts and Carl Heintel.

Bucky Walters Given Release As Reds' Pilot

Former Pitcher Will Stay In Organization

CINCINNATI, Sept. 29 (AP)—Bucky Walters, who failed to develop the Cincinnati Reds into a winning team this year, was released as manager today.

Inexperience was given by Warren Giles, general manager, as the reason for letting the once great right handed pitcher go.

Walters, a hero to the local fans even as his Reds slumped into seventh place just barely ahead of the cellar-ridden Chicago Cubs, left Cincinnati today.

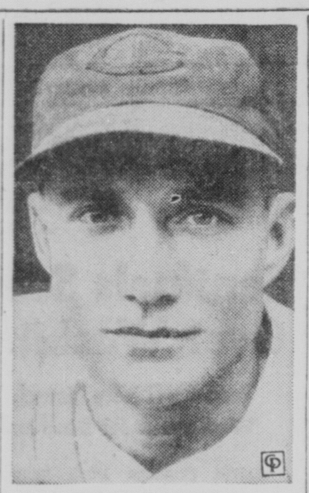

Giles left it to him whether he wants to manage the Reds in their final three games of the season at Pittsburgh.

Walters said he would think it over while driving east. If he decides to continue to his Philadelphia home, Luke Sewell, coach, will be in charge of the club in the series beginning tomorrow.

The 39-year-old Bucky took his dismissal in stride, although to those who saw and talked to him it was apparent he was hard hit.

"It's like being removed from the mound," he told a reporter. "I was knocked out of the box occasionally when I was a pitcher and got over it. This is a similar situation.

"I want to thank all the fans who have given me their loyal support in my 11 seasons with the Reds. They were swell and I'll always cherish the years I wore a Red uniform as being the brightest of my career."

BUCKY WALTERS

Giles, discussing Walters' release with newsmen, said:

"We believe that the club needs a man with more managerial experience than Walters. We do not know at this time who his successor will be We have three or four men under consideration, but nothing along that line will be done until after the world series."

Giles said the three or four men under consideration at present are not in the Cincinnati organization, which has teams at Syracuse, Tulsa, Charleston and Columbia.

Walters was appointed manager on August. 6, 1948, while the club was in Brooklyn and in a slump. He succeeded Johnny Neun, now with the New York Yankee organization.

Hanford Pilots The Pincher To Win At Laurel

Henry Hecht Sprinter Beats Friendly Frank

LAUREL, Md., Sept. 29 (AP) — The Pincher, making his first appearance in Maryland since last spring, drove through the sloppy going to capture the featured Montpelier Purse in easy fashion by some three lengths here today.

Friendly Frank was closest to the Henry Hecht owned sprinter which toted 124 pounds, including the veteran rider Ira Hanford. Lucky Ned was another length behind to pick up third.

The Pincher, was heavily backed by the crowd of 7,500 which ignored intermittent showers and mud, and returned $3.60 straight in the mutuels.

Miss Whippett went out to set the pace but The Pincher was in close pursuit. The three year old son of Helopolis caught the front runner at the top of the stretch and drew out to a handy triumph. Hanford never used his whip and The Pincher was not extended.

Irish Jockey Scores

ELMONT, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP) — Mrs. Stephen C. Clark Jr.'s Through Hill, hustled by Martin Malony, the top steeplechase jockey in Ireland, who recently came to this country, won the 41st running of the Brook Steeplechase Handicap at two miles and a half before 13,860 fans at Belmont Park today.

Trough Hill won by 10 lengths from his stablemate, Rokeby Stables American Way, who finished a half length to the good of His Boots, Brookmeade Stables 2 to 1 favorite.

The entry of Trough Hill and American Way, trained by J. T. (Jack) Skinner, returned a mutuel of $10.70, $9.50 and $4.90. His Boots was $3.40 to show.

Kent Miller's Elkridge, 11-year-old campaigner, greatest money winning steeplechaser of all time, had early speed, but flattened out in the final mile, finishing last in the field of eight.

Auto Racing Resumes Sunday

Automobile racing will be resumed at the Winchester Airport Speedway Sunday with time trials set for 1:30 p. m. and the racing program scheduled to get underway at 2:30 p. m.

Among the drivers signed are Carl Anderson, Jimmy Reed, Ches Wilkins, Shorty Bowers, Doug Bailey, Little Joe Jernigan and numerous others.

Kermit Batt, operator of the track, is expected to enter a racer that he has been working on for two years.

A light year is the distance a ray of light will travel in one year (approximately 6,000,000,000,000 miles).

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 29 (INS) — Between buying his pretty blonde wife some new fall clothes and giving her advice, Gabriel Pascal managed to disclose his plans to me. I heard his voice in English, in Hungarian and in French while she was being fitted.

"I am just out of the hospital where I have been for three weeks," he told me. "I had to come to Hollywood to talk to Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer."

He told me then he was preparing George Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" for Deborah Kerr, to be finished when she completes "King Solomon's Mines." Shaw, who elected Pascal to transfer his stories to the screen, of course will insist that "Androcles and the Lion" be made in Deborah's native England.

Perle Mesta, the number one hostess in Washington, and now minister to Luxembourg, is said to be the heroine of a new play. Russell Crouse and Howard Lindsay have written it, and is called "Lady Ambassador." Ethel Merman is the star, and Leland Hayward will produce it.

They are not in the market for movie offers, and I can understand that since they are a little late with their idea. Bob Considine has already sold his political comedy, "Washington Hostess," to Cosmopolitan magazine for a serial, and there have been many movie offers.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Joan Fontaine was conspicuous by her absence at the Paris charity gala of "Snake Pit." Meanwhile, telegrams and flowers continue to pour in to Olivia De Havilland, the star of "Snake Pit," with congratulations on the arrival of her baby son.

Jim Jordan and his bride, Peggy Knudsen, here for a visit, dining at the Brown Derby with Jim's wonderful pa and ma, Fibber McGee and Molly.

William Hartley, new editor of Modern Screen, is in our fair city on business. Fred Sammis, head of the MacFadden Magazines, including Photoplay, gets here Monday.

Mindy Carson, who really does look like Ingrid Bergman, brings them into Ciro's. Her fresh young beauty impresses me even more than her voice.

Playing a return engagement to hear Mindy were Joan Crawford and Cesar Romero. She had with her Elaine Scott and John Steinbeck. By the way, all that talk that Elaine, who was in New York with Zachary who is making a movie, had a polio scare, is just gossip. Elaine says she had a stiff neck, and that is all.

My pals, the press photographers, will have a bigger and better costume ball than ever on October 15 at Ciro's. There is great competition among the stars to wear original costumes.

Richard Wright has been quietly shooting scenes in Chicago of "Native Son," his play. Wright, himself, has turned actor and plays the leading role. I hear foreign capital is back of him.

Diana Douglas is remaining in New York to do a television show, "Photocrime." I don't think she was ever happy here after her separation from Kirk.

Don't be surprised if Charles Boyer gets one of the leads in "Ferguson" with Cary Grant.

Miss Linda Susan Agar is now being heard on a record of "Pretty Baby," but only for her proud mama, Shirley Temple, and her proud father, John Agar. Shirley sang the same song when she was just a little older than Linda Susan.

Lorraine Perry, the former Mrs. Raoul Walsh, returns to Hollywood the last of this month. She will be accompanied by her tennis-playing husband, Fred Perry.

Sophie Tucker, the last of the red-hot mamas, "Chiefs" in here Friday to rest before she opens at El Rancho Vegas.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

The Rustlers Are Outgunned

The writers of Captain Video, "electronic wizard, master of time and space, and guardian of the safety of the world", have outwitted themselves. The Captain is everything they say he is, but he's a little too invulnerable to worry about, a situation that has been creeping up on the writers of these childhood classics ever since Superman was created.

John Crosby

There isn't anything to be done about it either, men. A hero, if we are really to become concerned over his welfare, has to have an Achilles heel somewhere, preferably on one of his feet. Otherwise, why worry? Perhaps, we ought to get back to the good old tradition of "Treasure Island" where a boy had only his muscles and his wits and the occasional assistance of an apple barrel to keep him out of trouble.

• — • — •

Captain Video, in the event your young haven't already informed you, is to television what Captain Midnight, Superman and Jack Armstrong are to radio. Except he's better equipped. Video, who resembles Captain Flagg more than he does Albert Einstein, has invented—let's see, now—the cosmic vibrator which will vibrate you to death if you're not damned careful, the static beam which discharges lethal bolts of electricity, and the opticon scillometer which can see through bathroom doors or any other doors anywhere in the world. That last one, I feel, ought to be internationally controlled right now.

As a matter of fact, Video is way past the atomic age. He has an atomic rifle, it's true, but it's as outmoded as Daniel Boone's breech-loader and he uses it chiefly as a sidearm.

The Captain's headquarters, on top of a mountain, are stuffed with dials and buttons and knobs and screens of one sort or another and from here he keeps track of a world-wide organization of agents who suppress outlawry and wickedness from Nepal to Patagonia. It's quite a setup, all right. Perhaps, as I suggested before a little too good a setup.

Fact is, Captain Video spends most of his energy and all this magnificent equipment chasing down cattle rustlers. Pretty small fry for a cosmic vibrator. I rather hoped the rustlers would be armed at least with atomic rifles. But no. Just those prehistoric six-guns. The rustlers don't even get around in jet planes as any civilized person does. They ride horses.

You may have to explain to the very young, or pre-horse, generation what an oatburner is. You may have to explain a lot of other things.

"Why doesn't Captain Video use the static beam, mummie," your urchin is likely to ask, as the rustlers go hell-for-leather down those dusty roads with the sheriff's posse—galumph-galumph—on their heels. Don't ask me, Junior. I don't know either. I think he's just toying with these poor rustlers, like a cat with a mouse, and I find it cruel sport.

Captain Video, I must admit, does pick on one guy who is more his own size—an evil genius named Dr. Pauli, himself an inventor of some distinction. Pauli's chief weapon is the sound barrier. All sound ceases when he turns it on. This enables him to sneak into Captain Video's mountain hideout, even slamming the doors after him, without detection. He hasn't succeeded yet in swiping the cosmic vibrator or the opticon scillometer and my guess is he won't. Captain Video has him outgunned.

Each of these episodes ends with what in my youth we referred to as a cliff-hanger. "Something's going to have to be done," the narrator declares, "The Video Ranger (the Captain's assistant, age fifteen, nice-looking boy) is in terrible danger."

Trouble is I can't bring myself to believe the Video Ranger is in terrible danger. Back when I was a boy a cliffhanger was in terrible danger. He didn't have an electronic parachute or a cosmogravitation resister or any of these modern devices. He had to get back on that cliff with his bare hands.

Frostburg Property Sold For $9,500

Deed of sale of a Frostburg property for about $9,500 was filed yesterday in the Land Records Office at the Court House.

The property, lot 1 of Block 7 on Ormond Street, was conveyed to Samuel J. and Mary Ruffo by Charles C. and Helen I. Bittner.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

COVER MOST CHANCES

AS BETWEEN several different ways of playing a particular combination of cards in a suit, the fine player chooses on a basis of probabilities. First, he considers which method will gain his end with the largest number of possible different arrangements of the missing cards. Then he weighs the probabilities as to which of those arrangements are the most likely. Combining those two factors, he has the formula on which to base his plan of action.

	♠ 5 4 2 ♥ A J ♦ 4 3 2 ♣ A J 7 6 4
♠ A K 10 7 6 ♥ K 6 4 2 ♦ J ♣ 5 3 2	N W E S	♠ Q J 8 3 ♥ Q 10 5 3 ♦ K 10 7 6 5 ♣ None
	♠ 9 ♥ 9 8 7 ♦ A Q 9 8 ♣ K Q 10 9 8

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♣
4 ♠	5 ♣

By only slightly varied bidding, two duplicate tables produced that contract, which was made at one and beaten at the other. In each instance the spade K won the first trick and the declarer then ruffed the A. But then the play varied.

The unsuccessful declarer used the club K, Q and J on the third, fourth and fifth tricks, then finessed the diamond Q. When it felled the J, he showed off his mental speed by promptly laying down the A, expecting it would kill the 10. If that happened, he could give up a trick in the suit with the 9 to the K and have his 8 as a good card for discarding the heart J. But West discarded on the diamond A and South now had to lose one trick to each red suit, to be downed.

After ruffing the second spade, the more skillful declarer overtook the club K with the A and finessed the diamond Q. When he saw the J drop, he did some thinking, which showed the importance of leading twice toward the diamond A-9-8. So he scored the club Q, led the 9 to the J and brought out the diamond 3. When East played the 10, he let it win, putting on the 8. That gave him a perfect tenace of the A-9 over the K-7. East returned the spade Q, which the club 10 ruffed. Then South led to the heart A, finessed the diamond 9, and used the A to discard the heart J. The dummy's last two trumps finished the hand. His contract was made because he played the diamonds in a way sure to succeed no matter which defender held the 10.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

In Memoriam

A tribute of love to the memory of our dear husband and father, Harry W. Jones, who passed away one year ago, September 30, 1948.
Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all;
A bitter grief, a shock severe,
It was to part with one so dear.
We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died.
To think you could not say good-bye
Before you closed your eyes.
For all your friends you did your best,
Oh, God grant you eternal rest.
Devoted wife and children

Stock Traders Put Money On Peace In Steel Industry

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP) — Stock traders put their money on peace in the steel industry today.

In the face of almost overwhelming indications that a strike scheduled for Friday midnight will be carried out, the market closed within a shade of the year's top mark.

Business picked up speed when the market was climbing, tended to contract on the way down. Turnover of 1,380,000 shares was above 1,000,000 shares for the 13th session in a row and compared with 1,300,000 Wednesday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .3 of one point to 65.9. This matched the high point of a summer rally first touched September 13 and was tops since the high of the year of 66.2 was established on January 22.

The market was the broadest in more than a week with a total of 1,055 individual issues traded. Of these 461 advanced and 304 declined.

Railway issues, strong for a while, fell back farther than most other groups. Nickel Plate finished a point up at 77½ and only fractional gains were posted for Santa Fe at 95⅞, Southern Railway 32¼, Southern Pacific 42¾, and Illinois Central 29.

United States Steel, up three-eighths point at one time, ended one-fourth ahead at 23¾. Bethlehem Steel also added three-eighths

Others ending higher included United Corporation, Radio Corporation, Consumers Power, General Public Utilities, Consolidated Edison, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Schenley, Admiral Corporation, United Gas Corporation, Allied Chemical (up four at 185), Standard Oil (NJ), Plymouth Oil, United Air Lines, Goebel Brewing, W. T. Grant, and American Seating.

State Police Not Likely To Guard Mines

Muir Denies Mine Owners' Accusations, Minimizes Violence

Governor W. Preston Lane is not likely to honor any request to place State Troopers on guard duty at non-union mines, according to a spokesman in the governor's office.

An Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore last night quoted a spokesman as saying it was unlikely Lane would order State Police to the aid of area mine owners, who said Wednesday they would appeal to the governor if Sheriff Edward S. Muir failed to call in State Police. The Governor was not immediately available for comment.

Yesterday, Sheriff Muir denied accusations of three area mine owners that his office has failed to afford adequate protection from roving pickets. He also minimized reports of mine violence, and a UMW official agreed that this has been one of the most peaceful mine strikes in county history.

TWUA Awaits Reply

Meanwhile, Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, was awaiting a reply from Governor Lane to a telegram sent to him yesterday urging that he disregard a possible request for State Police.

Playford Aldridge, president of the TWUA local, wired Lane that assigning State Police to the mines would "create a situation which we are convinced does not exist at the present."

Aldridge's telegram urged Lane to "use the utmost caution and discretion in this matter," and charged that "a few individuals are trying their best to create a state of hysteria."

In a point-by-point denial of the operators' accusations, Muir said his office has done everything in its power to protect mine owners from violence.

He declared that he has not called for State Police assistance because "we haven't seen any trouble we couldn't handle."

Muir added he believes the mine owners are aroused over "violence which doesn't exist." He added, "We have had no reports of any violence."

The sheriff said he and his four deputies have answered all calls for help, and until Monday "did not see a single picket."

In the latest report of violence, which allegedly took place early Wednesday morning near the Raymond Frenzel mine in Potomac Hollow, Muir explained that Deputies Edgar M. Lewis and William Chappell were both on the road when he got a call for assistance.

Frenzel had claimed the sheriff told him at 7 a. m. he would "send someone up after dinner." Muir declared Frenzel had not called him until after the pickets had left.

By the time Lewis and Chappell arrived, he added, there was nothing to be done.

The sheriff explained that he has only four deputies. "We've had to postpone some of our less essential work because of the mine situation," Deputy William B. Orr said.

Muir and Lewis added that it has been impossible in most cases to get to a mine that is being picketed until after the pickets have left, because the mines are too far from Cumberland and because the pickets usually remain at the mines only a short time.

No Violence Reported

The Sheriff's office, Muir said, had no report of violence Tuesday at the James Moran strip mine a mile from Westernport and across the Garrett County line.

James Moran, one of the operators of the mine, said Wednesday his brother, Richard Moran, had been forced to fire a pistol to disperse a crowd of pickets.

Muir said the mine is out of his jurisdiction, since it is in Garrett County. Garrett County Deputy Sheriff Arthur Fisher, who visited the mine Tuesday with Sheriff Juniper S. Teats of Garrett County, said Garrett County authorities had no report of violence at the mine.

Deputy Lewis denied an accusa-

Farewell To School And Teacher

Locust Grove last night said farewell to Mrs. Helen Daughtrey Caldara, who taught in their one-room school for the past 21 years. It has been closed as an educational unit and will be taken over now as a community center. Clyde Kuhns, president of the new Community Center Association, is seen presenting Mrs. Caldara with a gift from the community as other officers look on. They are (left to right) Walter White, and Christopher Garleck, trustees; Mrs. Phyllis Swain, secretary; Mrs. Edna Doman, trustee; Paul Shaffer, vice president; and William Judy, treasurer.

Locust Grove School Passes Into History

Community Will Use Building As Center

The one-room school house that has served Locust Grove for the past 21 years became history last night, but the building will continue to serve many who were educated in it.

With simple ceremony residents of the area seated themselves at the desks where they once studied and said farewell to Mrs. Helen Daughtrey Caldara who during her 21 years as a teacher taught most of them to read and write.

It was the Parent-Teacher Association that began the gathering but it also ceased to function before the meeting ended and in its stead a new organization — The Community Center Association — was formed.

The new group will direct the activities of the building which was turned over to the community a few days after the 16 students who attended there this year were transferred to Centre Street School in Cumberland.

The move followed a request of the residents who admitted that the student body wasn't large enough to warrant a school in the area any longer. It was then that the county turned the building over for community activities.

Clyde Kuhns became the first president of the association at an election which also named Paul Shaffer vice president, William Judy, treasurer, and Mrs. Phyllis Swain, secretary.

The board of trustees consists of Christopher Garleck, Mrs. Edna Doman and Walter White. They will meet next Wednesday to redecorate the room that so long has held the desks and books of the community students.

Before the social began, President Kuhns, a one-time student of Mrs. Caldara, stepped to the front of the room and made a little speech before handing a bouquet of roses and a piece of luggage to the teacher.

As she accepted it she stepped down from the big desk for the last time and saw assembled in the room in one large group the students that had entered, studied and passed during the past 21 years.

Aldridge Gets Bid To CIO Convention

Playford Aldridge, president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) has been selected as a national representative of the TWUA to the 11th annual convention of the Congress of Industrial Organizations which will open in Cleveland, Ohio, October 31.

The appointment was received here yesterday in a letter from Emil Rieve, general TWUA president.

Aldridge's appointment marks the first time that a member of Celanese Local 1874 has been named an official TWUA delegate to the CIO convention.

Fire Fighting Equipment Will Be Displayed

Varied Program Is Planned Oct. 9-15

The Cumberland Fire Department will present a display of fire fighting equipment, old and new, in connection with the observance of Fire Prevention Week which will be sponsored here October 9-15 by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Material for the exhibit, which will be placed in Rosenbaum's window, is being collected by Assistant Chief William L. Lindner and other members of the local fire department.

At least 45 pieces of fire fighting equipment, including life nets and portable extinguishers including a foam generator and the latest model carbon dioxide extinguishers, will be included in the exhibit.

The Canada Hose Company's reel will be placed on exhibit on Baltimore Street during the week.

Other plans for the observance of Fire Prevention Week include the showing of fire prevention films to all school children. Also planned are:

School contests, both essays and art, to stress the importance of saving lives and property through fire prevention.

Distribution of fire prevention posters and literature throughout the city.

Fire Chief John E. Brennan said yesterday that all four city fire stations will hold "open house" all that week and will welcome all citizens who wish to know more about their fire department operates.

Actually, he said, firemen keep "open house" at all times since they welcome the interest of all citizens in the work of the department.

County Safety Dinner Attended By 60 Delegates

Committee Heartened Will Continue Work

Safety and its importance to Allegany County was stressed last night as 60 delegates from industry, home, school and traffic groups concluded a Safety Week observance with a dinner at the Ali Ghan Country Club.

State Senator Robert B. Kimble, safety director for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad told the delegates that education, engineering and enforcement are the paramount needs to prevent injury and death.

The gathering was the climax of what once was to be a small dinner by a group of industrial engineers of the area. It grew rapidly though as a committee became aware that almost all business men, police departments, industrial managers and union leaders were intensely interested in safety precautions.

John J. Long, chairman of the committee that arranged the week's program, said the committee, heartened by the large response, intends to make safety a year around activity in the county from now on.

Last night's gathering represented almost every segment of county activity and heard addresses by Senator Kimble, Lt. Edwin R. Lilya, head of Cumberland's Traffic Department, Joseph Haller, safety director, and Simon Riley, member of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

Two displays of items used in safety work were set up for the gathering and a skit presented by dramatic students of Fort Hill High School pointed out a number of things that shouldn't be done if accidents are to be prevented.

Long, who acted as toastmaster at the dinner, said the work of keeping the county conscious of ways and means of preventing fires and accidents is going to be continued on a year-around basis now that it has started.

Stowell Takes Inspector Oath

Edward A. Stowell, 48, Mt. Savage, took oath yesterday as the new district mine inspector for the Maryland Bureau of Mines.

Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, administered the oath yesterday afternoon at the Court House.

Stowell, a World War II veteran, will take office tomorrow, working from Mine Bureau headquarters in Westernport. He succeeds Frank Powers, who was recently promoted to director of the bureau.

A native of Mt. Savage, Stowell has 22 years of experience as a miner and mine foreman. During World War II he served in the Seabees, seeing 31 months of service in the South Pacific, where he earned four battle stars.

Stowell, a member of Old Rail Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Mt. Savage, has been steward of the post for three years.

His wife is the former Miss Iris Bowers. He has a son, John, who served three years in the Navy during the war, another son, Max, former Beall High School baseball star, and a daughter, Margaret.

Governor W. Preston Lane, Jr., signed Stowell's commission as inspector last Tuesday.

Eagles Give $500 In Chest Drive

Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, has pledged $500 to the Cumberland Community Chest campaign, John W. Harbaugh, worthy president, announced last night.

The pledge marks the first actual contribution to be received at the Chest campaign office in the drive for $83,745 to carry on the work of the nine member agencies of the chest.

The action was taken on the recommendation of the Board of Trustees including Francis H. Schultz, W. V. Morrissey and Lt. R. R. Johnston.

Schultz said the Cumberland Aerie was "glad to make its annual contribution" to the Chest campaign. The contribution, he said, means the carrying out of one of the precepts of the order, adding that the lodge realizes the value of organized work in meeting the welfare needs of the community.

A report of the Advance Gifts committee of the Cumberland Community Chest drive will be presented at a meeting of the committee today at 12:15 p. m. at Central YMCA.

Mysterious Romeo Asks Aid In Finding A Wife

A man who identified himself only as "R. C. Thomas" of Wiley Ford has written a letter to Mayor Marshall Kurfees of Winston-Salem, N. C., asking his help in finding a wife.

The letter says:

"I am a young man of good habits, am in good health, not so bad looking, having some money saved and have a steady job. I would like to find at once, a nice young woman, not over 30 years old, who would be willing to marry me and would be kind to and take good care of my motherless children.

"I would want a girl who is a fairly good cook and housekeeper and who is in good health and not so bad looking. I am sincere about this matter and would like to hear from any girl sincerely interested in this, at once."

Wiley Ford residents said last night there is no man by that name who resides in the area, so far as is known.

Mayor Kurfees of Winston-Salem, according to an Associated Press story, is a cautious man.

The mayor pointed out that the letter left some questions unanswered, such as:

How many children? How much money saved? His age? Why the haste? And, Mayor Kurfees noted, the "young man" did not enclose a picture.

The mayor said he had interviewed several young ladies in City Hall offices at Winston Salem "but none of them seemed to think they were eligible. They want to know more about this man, and I can't guarantee anything."

"I've had many kinds of requests since I got to City Hall," Mayor Kurfees added, "but this is the first time I've ever been asked to set up a matrimonial bureau."

Sorry, there's no more definite information, girls. You'll have to take it from there.

Attorneys W. Earle Cobey, William Carscaden and C. William Gilchrist represent the plaintiff.

Boy, 7, Treated For Head Injury

A seven-year-old local boy, Glenn Rice, 143 Thomas Street, was treated in Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon after suffering a slight laceration of the head when he ran against a parked truck. Attaches said they were told the accident occurred on Virginia Avenue.

Carl Cessna, 12-year-old son of Wilbur Cessna, Flintstone, was admitted to Allegany Hospital after he fractured his left elbow while playing in the school yard.

Allegany attaches reported that Paul Stakem, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stakem, 611 Sedgwich Street, was in "good condition" last night. The boy suffered a brain concussion in a fall at SS. Peter and Paul School playgorund Wednesday. He is expected to leave the hospital by Monday.

Salvation Army Meets Important Family Needs

The Salvation Army has been faced with a difficult task in meeting the growing need for family relief, Major Elmer Wall, commander, told the Salvation Army Advisory Board at its meeting at the Salvation Army Citadel Wednesday.

He said the Army has managed, with its limited budget, to meet all the important needs of families and to "take the edge off the suffering" of families who have applied for help.

Since January, he reported, 127 families have been assisted by the Salvation Army. The aid given includes 119 grocery orders, 4,806 garments and 565 pairs of shoes.

The Army made 282 salvage pick ups to collect usable articles which could be used by those in need.

The club and recreation program for young people will get underway at the Citadel, 115 North Mechanic Street, and at the Outpost, 511 Virginia Avenue, within a few weeks, the Board was advised.

Since January, the report indicated, 1,074 persons had attended open air meetings, 1,234 were present at Home League meetings, 8,623 at senior indoor meetings and 12,348 at indoor meetings for young people.

Major Wall reported that attendance at services both the Citadel and Outpost has greatly increased during the past eight months.

The meeting, called to discuss plans for the fall program of the Salvation Army brought out a record turnout, with 22 of the 31 members of the Board in attendance.

Man Fined For Damaging Crutch

Robert Youngblood, Virginia Avenue, was fined $54.75 in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday on a charge of "malicious damage" to an aluminum crutch owned by Joseph Powell.

Authorities said Youngblood swung the crutch against a utility pole and bent it. The crutch was valued at $20.

Youngblood and Harry Jackson, 506 Necessity Street, were fined $10 each in Police Court yesterday after pleading not guilty to disorderly conduct charges.

Police said the pair created a disturbance in front of a Baltimore Street restaurant Wednesday night. Jackson's brother, Andrew Jackson, 317 Fifth Street, who was given a suspended sentence, claimed Youngblood grabbed one of his crutches, which had been loaned to him by Powell.

Youngblood is being held for 10 days in City Jail in default of fine, after which he will be transferred to County Jail to serve a 30-day term imposed in Trial Magistrates Court by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew in default of the second fine, authorities said.

C. A. Brown, proprietor of the Tip Top Billiard Parlor at 164 Baltimore Street, forfeited $25 bond in Police Court on a charge of maintaining a gaming device. Detectives Thomas J. See and E. M. Powell said they found a punchboard and two tipboards at the establishment.

Oakland Doctor Academy Officer

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 29 (AP) —Worrying yourself to death? It's possible, Maryland's family doctors were told today.

Dr. Louis A. M. Krause, of the University of Maryland School of Medicine, said worry and anxiety can bring on illness which may prove fatal.

An associate professor of medicine at the school, Dr. Krause made the statement at the first convention of the newly-organized Maryland Academy of General Practice.

There's less freedom in the world today, he said. More standardization in thoughts and actions causes this which in turn leads to frustration and mental illness.

The mental illness, in turn, can produce physical ailments and these sometimes are serious enough to result in death, Krause said.

He advised his colleagues to adopt a "father-confessor approach" toward their patients, finding out what's on their minds before treating their bodies.

Man Is Acquitted In Hunting Case

KEYSER, W. Va. — Russell E. McDonald, Route 1, Keyser, was acquitted of a charge of carrying an uncased gun on land not his own in off hunting season at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle here last night.

The verdict was returned by a six man jury following testimony by Claude A. Rice, conservation officer, and two defense witnesses.

Officer Rice testified he arrested McDonald on September 23 after securing a warrant.

In describing the case, the officer said he was in the Fountain area September 22 when he heard three shots fired. He said he hurried to the area and saw the man he did not know by name.

The officer testified that when he came near, the man he identified as McDonald drew his gun but turned and ran through the brush after he drew his weapon.

Officer Rice said he pursued the man through heavy brush and that the man later pointed the gun at him before making good his escape in the woods.

$25,000 Suit Is Dismissed

Attorneys for an aged Rainsburg, Pa., man yesterday were granted a motion for voluntary dismissal of his $25,000 damage suit against the old Peoples Bank of Cumberland.

The 81-year-old plaintiff, Thomas L. Cessna, charged in a suit filed in Circuit Court here in October, 1947, that $20,000 in cash had disappeared from his safe deposit box at the bank.

The case was first removed to Washington County and later to Garrett County, where a jury trial opened yesterday morning before Associate Judge George Henderson.

Action of Cessna's attorneys came after defense lawyers moved for a directed verdict in favor of the bank, when the plaintiff's evidence had been completed.

Cessna, who suffered a stroke two years ago which affected his speech, was present in the court room when depositions made last year were read in lieu of his testimony.

The plaintiff stated he had withdrawn $20,000 in cash from a Bedford, Pa., bank in about 1943 and had deposited it in a Peoples Bank safe deposit box which he had rented since 1938. He claimed the money had disappeared when the box was later opened.

Defense attorneys said bank records showed that Cessna had rented the box but had never used it.

Edward J. Ryan, William L. Wilson, Jr., and Dwight Stover, Oakland, represented Cessna. Attorneys for the bank were John T. Fey and Walter W. Dawson, Oakland.

Equity Suit Filed

Edward J. Ryan, assignee, filed a bill of complaint yesterday against Laura Belle Diehl and her son, Kyle R. Diehl, to foreclose a $3,500 chattel mortgage, given by the Diehls to Steve P. Karros and Evanguline S. Karras, his wife, two years ago.

If You Think Rush Hour Driving Is Bad, Take A Look At Records

So you think the evening rush hour when everybody is hurrying home to dinner and a night at the radio is the worst time of the day to be driving. Well, just take a look at statistics, because you're wrong.

The Maryland State Police publish a little paper they refer to as a Collision and Enforcement Summary. It proves rather conclusively that you can get into the most trouble from 7 p. m. on and another table points to Wednesday as the day that it's best to spend at home.

The records compiled during and for August list a total of 21 collisions in the state for that period, eight of which occurred on Wednesdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays were even with three each, Mondays 2 and only one on Tuesday.

Now for those who worry most about the ticket that amounts to an invitation to appear before the judge, Saturday and Sunday are two good days to leave the car in the garage. During August 46 motorists were arrested on Saturdays and 35 on Sundays. Mondays and Wednesdays are next with 29 each.

Speaking of appearing before the judge, it's that desire to get there fast that most often detours drivers into court, for the records show that out of 183 arrests in August 41 were for exceeding 50 miles an hour.

Reckless driving is next highest of the motor laws that are broken and in August 39 persons were hailed into court on that charge. Police had to stop 79 others to tell them their lights weren't working properly.

About that late driving which shows the rush hour may be the most annoying but certainly not the most dangerous, a glance at the time table shows such numbers as 3, 5, 6 and 8 in the number of arrests and warnings given from midnight up to 7 p. m. and then the number jumps rapidly.

For instance, between 7 and 8 p. m. 16 arrests and 12 warnings were given in August; from 8 to 9 p. m., 14 persons were arrested and 25 more given warnings; from 9 to 10 p. m., 9 arrests were made and 27 others warned; from 10 to 11 p. m., 15 arrests were made and 30 drivers told "be more careful," and from 11 to midnight 22 were arrested and 26 told "don't do it again."

So the next time you get angry in the "after work" traffic line just remember it may be inconvenient but there are more dangerous hours ahead if you are planning to go out after dinner.

High School Asks Former Students To Suggest Changes In Study Plan

Allegany High School is asking its former students what academic changes they would make if they were running the school and they're getting answers, too.

The program which is a new activity set up by Principal Ralph R. Webster, and Miss Dorothy Byers, guidance director, is presently dealing with 1948 graduates. It will contact more, however.

The program is actually planned to contact all graduates of the school three times after they leave Allegany — the first, third and fifth years.

Questionnaires sent to the 200 graduates of 1948 asked them what they are doing now and do they consider themselves a success. Of the 111 answers received to date some thought "I could have chosen a more suitable field" or "I don't earn enough to permit my wife to stop work and raise a family."

From another group came the reply that college life is proving a bit more difficult than High School with the "A" and "B" a whole lot harder to get.

Then at the request of the school came a few suggestions of what could have been done to change at least some of the situations.

Academic graduates found the going a bit hard without training in typewriting and shorthand. According to some, these are proving essential needs which they now believe "all students should be required to take up."

From others came a barrage of suggestions for additional subjects that ranged from home decorating to military training. Here are a few:

Sociology, psychology, electrical work, motor mechanics, drama, ear training, public speaking, first aid, essay type examinations and last but not least a class to teach the student "how to study."

Then there were those whose only comment was that their education at Allegany High School is entirely commensurate to their needs. They're not in the minority, either.

Bishop Sewing Method To Be Used At Night Adult Clothing Classes

The Bishop method of sewing will be taught at all of the varied classes in clothing construction to be offered throughout the county under the adult education program of the Allegany County Board of Education.

Classes at three local centers and in Cresaptown, Frostburg, Lonaconing and Westernport will begin next week. Most classes are held for one three-hour session each week from 7 to 10 p.m.

The Bishop method of sewing was developed by Mrs. Edna B. Bishop, Pittsburgh, Pa., whose name has long been associated with famous New York fashion clinics, colleges, trade and industry throughout the country.

Mrs. Bishop has been in Cumberland twice during the past year to hold workshops with the instructors who will have charge of the adult education classes.

Last January she gave a demonstration to all women enrolled in the clothing construction classes for women.

Class schedules at Fort Hill include beginner's, Tuesday and Thursday; advanced, Tuesday and Thursday; coat and suit making, Monday and Thursday; children's clothing, Tuesday; designing of clothes, Monday; alteration of women's clothes, Monday.

The course in designing of women's clothes will be taught by Mrs. John Gravelle. Mrs. Gravelle is a graduate of a school in dress designing and dress making, and has for a number of years exhibited her original designs in exclusive dress shops in large cities.

This course will stress designing of clothes, pattern making, changing commercial patterns to suit the individual's tastes and individuality.

The alteration of women's clothes class will be taught by Mrs. Christine Hess. Mrs. Hess has had many years of experience in clothing alteration in industry, and is well-known locally for her ability in dress making. This course is designed primarily for women interested in learning how to alter clothes. The training offered in this course will be sufficient to enable women to work in alteration departments in clothing stores.

Other centers in Cumberland offering courses in clothing construction are Mrs. Christine Hess, 316 Piedmont Avenue, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, 1:30-4:30; Carver High School, Thursday night, Miss Mary Carter, instructor.

Clothing centers in other parts of the county are Cresaptown, Mrs. Katherine Rotruck, Tuesday and Thursday; Beall High School, Tuesday, Mrs. John Gravelle, and Thursday, Mrs. Esther Kachline; Lonaconing, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Mrs. Hayes Friend and Miss Margaret Hayden.
